HALF MILLION MEN IN FRANCE SOON

BAKER ASSURES NATION MILLION MORE TO FOLLOW

Will Be Transported as Quickly as Ships Can Be Provided

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—America will have an army of half a million men in France early this year with a million more trained and equipped ready to follow as quickly as ships can be provided to carry them and the outlook for ships is not unpromising.

Secretary Baker gave this information to the nation and to the world today in a statement before the senate military committee baring much which until now has been carefully guarded with the army's military secrets in answering charges that the government has broken down preparing for war.

From early morning until late afternoon the secretary addressed the committee and a crowd including many members of both houses of congress, gathered in a big room of the senate office building. He spoke extemporaneously, beginning with details of the mammoth task of building an army of a million and a half, answering such complaints of inefficiency as were cited by Senator Chamberlain in his recent speech and declaring that such instances were isolated and not general. Some questions were asked and Mr. Baker from time to time had assistants go to the telephone for reports on specific questions. Then toward the close of the day the secretary delivered a dramatic general statement of the American war plan telling of the coming of the allied missions, of the day and night conferences with men from the scene of battle and of success beyond the most sanguine expectations in building the army, and its industrial supports at home, transporting men across the ocean, constructing railroads in France and preparing to strike the enemy with every resource at the country's command.

Created Profound Impression.

When Mr. Baker closed it was apparent he had created a profound impression.

Chairman Chamberlain said so before he left the stand. There was no attempt at cross-examination. The chairman proposed that the secretary be given a rest and it virtually was agreed to recall him for further examination later after the committee has completed its hearings of officers of the medical corps, aviation section and other branches of the service. While many things impressed the committee it was amazed when told thirty two national guard and national army divisional camps are ready to go today at need. When members wanted to know why such things had not been given publicity before, Mr. Baker spoke of the reluctance of military men to reveal their war plans and quoted German remarks about America's advertisement of her preparations. Emphasizing that he was not there to defend himself or anybody else, the secretary urged the committee again and again to lay bare any shortcoming or failure of the department that it might be corrected.

Never in history, he declared, had an army of its size been raised, equipped, trained and prepared more data as had that of the United States. Mr. Baker took personal responsibility for getting men under training before their equipment was ready "to the last shoe button."

Such officers as Major General Leonard Wood, he said, had urged this policy. In all that was done prior to departure of the first troops General Pershing shared in the deliberations and approved the decisions reached, Mr. Baker declared and now surrounded with a staff of trained regular officers who could ill be spared for the great task at home, Pershing is in France as the "eyes of the army."

Every step taken since has been founded on his long daily cabled reports of what is going on at the fighting fronts. Tables were cited to show that overcrowding in camps and cantonments had not been general and that sickness had come mostly in camps where medical opinion had agreed it was least to be expected.

Additional Tentage Ordered

"Our expectation was that the men in the tents would be safe but as soon as it was discovered that the boys were circumventing automatic ventilation by closing down the flaps of the tents additional tentage was ordered."

"Isn't it likely the men would not have done this had they had adequate clothing," asked Senator Hitchcock.

"I think that is entirely possible," was the reply.

Senator Weeks asked if the pneumonia epidemic did not result from inadequate facilities.

"I don't think so," said the secretary.

Secretary Baker said it was not thought at first that base hspitals of a permanent character would be needed at national guard camps, from which troops would be promptly removed. Later he said it developed that more permanent hospitals must be established. General Gorgas, he said, had not recommended permanent sewage and water systems for the national guard camps for that reason at first.

"But when he did recommend them, the orders were immediately given," Mr. Baker said.

Overtaken By Epidemics

"The fact is," Mr. Baker said, "we were overtaken by epidemics before the base hospitals were ready at some national guard camps. When General Gorgas made his inspections the conditions were remedied instantly.

"After General Gorgas returned about the middle of December, from his inspection he suggested—for the first time—the wisdom of building detention camps for observation of men arriving to prevent them from bringing in disease. His recommendations to that end were not made earlier."

Secretary Baker said he would proceed with a larger subject, the plans for the war, but Senator Reid asked him to explain recent orders prohibiting soldiers from writing letters for publication unless they are censored. He asked if that would prevent men from telling their families of lack of clothing or improper food.

"Absolutely no," said the secretary, explaining that it was done to prevent soldiers from acting as regular correspondents for newspapers without censorship, but that men were encouraged to write for publication in their home papers after censorship.

Our Problem

"Now, gentlemen, about the plan of the war, it will be remembered that this war broke out in August, 1914. We went into it in April, 1917, so that for two and one-half years, or more than two and one-half years the war had been going on. * * * * * It was not a thing for us to decide where our theater of war should be. The theater of war was France. It was not for us to decide our line of communications. Our line of communication was across three thousand miles of ocean, one end of it infested with submarines. It was not for us to decide whether we would have the maneuvering of large bodies of troops in the open. There lay the antagonists on opposite sides of No-Man's Land in the trenches at a death grappie with one another. Our antagonist was on the other side of that line and our problem was and is to get over there and get him.

"It was not the problem of doing it our way and letting everybody else take care of himself. In the first place, we were going to fight in France, not on our own soil and not on our adversary's soil and therefore at the very beginning it was obvious that the thing we had to do was not to map out an ideal plan of campaign not to have the war college with its speculative studies of Napoleon and everybody else, map out the theoretically best way to get at some other country, but it was the problem of bringing the financial, industrial and the military strength of the United States into cooperation with that of Great Britain and France in the most immediate effective way.

Could Not Be Decided Here

"That problem could not be decided here. * * * * It is easily imagined that we might have perfected an army over here and carried it across the ocean and found it wholly unadapted to its task and it might well have been that the army that we sent over was just one thing that they did not need and that some other thing which we might have supplied would have been the thing essential to their success. So that from the very beginning it was not a question of abstract speculation here, but a question of study there to find out where our shoulder to the wheel could be put. Great Britain sent over to us Mr. Balfour and General Bridges and a staff of experts.

"The group of experts you did not see much of, yet they distributed themselves thru the war department and their ordnance experts sat down with General Crozier, their supply experts with General Sharpe and his assistants, their strategists with the army war college, and all over this city there were these confidential groups exchanging information. * *

"And then came Joffre, with his wonderful reputation and his great and charming personality. It was a tremendous inspiration to see the hero of the Marne, but with him came his unobserved staff of fifteen or twenty or twenty-five young men, the most brilliant men in the French army—strategists, mechanical experts, experts in arms, experts in supplies, experts in industry and manufacture and we sat down with them in little groups until finally we collected all the information they could give us from their respective countries. And every country which has been brought in the war has brought us that sort or sent us that sort of a staff of experts, and it has been necessary to compare notes and with this as a basis to form such an idea as might be formed of what was the thing for us to do over there.

"But that was not enough. They admitted that it was impossible to draw that picture. * * * * They could not picture to us the association of aircraft, balloons and mobile aircraft with artillery uses but even while they told us the story grew old.

"The one thing they told us was that this war, of all others, was not a static thing; that our adversary was a versatile and agile adversary; that every day he revamped and

War News Summarized

A million and a half Americans will be available for service in France during the present year, Secretary of War Baker announced before the senate military committee in Washington in replying to charges of inefficiency in the war department.

Of these men the secretary said there would be 500,000 in France "early this year." The others, he declared, would be available during the present twelve months

While the military operations on tht various fronts continue at low ebb the political pot boils furiously in Austria-Hungary and Germany, in both of which countries there have been new outbreaks among populace there because of economic and food conditions resulting from the war in addition the eastern provinces of Finland are witnessing a revolution according to unofficial despatches, with the Russian red guard in battle with the Finish army. The red guard is said to be in occupation of the railway station at Helsingfors and to be in control at Rinikimaki and other important junction points and the commander of the Russian warships in Helsingfors has threatened to raze the city with guns of the fleet unless the Finish white guard is disbanded. The Boisheviki government at Petrograd is reported to have sent reinforcements to the red guard six hundred of them having departed for Viborg taking with them machine guns.

Despatches from Switzerland are to the effect that there has been serious rioting n Bohemia owing to a shortage of flour ratons, strong measures by the polce being required to disperse the mobs, which smashed shop windows and plundered stores. Likewise severe outbreaks are reported in th industrial regions in Rhenish-Prussia where troops had to be called out to deal wth the dssatsfied populace.

Attacks by the Pan-Germanists against any and all persons who are opposing their war aims continue unabated in Germany. A remarkable utterance is that made by the Pan-German Deutsche Tages Zeitung, which calls for a revolt against the present regime in Germany Announcement is made that Count von Hertling, the imperial German chancellor, shortly make a further statement regarding the Belgian question offering positive suggestions and proposals.

Nowhere on any of the fronts have the nfantry operations risen above patrol encounters and trench raiding maneuvers.

The artillery duels between the British and Germans on the French northern front are severe on several sectors and in the hill region of the Italian front the big guns of the belligerents again are engaged. Several successful raids have been carrid out by the French troops against the Germans in the Champagne and St. Mihiel sector of the French front.

In both the French and Italian theaters the ally and enemy aviators daily are indulging in extensive fighting in the air. There also has been considerable bombing by alied airmen of German positions behind the fighting line and also over Germany. Four American aviators aided a French flying squadron in a day light raid over Germany, all the fliers returning safely to their bases.

BOYS ARE CHARGED WITH MANY CRIMES

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—"More crimes are committed by Chicago boys between the ages of 15 and 20 years in one year than have been committed in the whole of Europe in 100 years," Judge Rickham Scanlan of the criminal court told an audience at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. He said that 115 probation officers have been assigned to one juvenile court here and that each of them have seventy cases of juvenile delinquency to investigate.

Judge Scanlan says the tales of the youthful criminals were in many cases so sordid as to be a cause of horror to the judges hearing them. He attributed the frequency of crime among youths to lack of discipline and faulty moral standards.

POLISH FOOD RIOTS BECOME SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Food riots in the city of Cracow, Poland, have become so serious said an official despatch today from Switzerland, that the authorities have appealed to the Austrian prime minister for aid in quieting the disturbances. Martial law has been proclaimed and the hours of public eating houses curtailed. housands of women and children are reported parading the streets daily demanding food.

NO MESSAGE RECEIVED.

London, Jan. 28.—Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer announced in the house of commons today that no message official or semi-official, emanating from high quarters in Washington and pointing out the urgency of a settlement of the Irish question have been received by Premier Lloyd George.

ELECT DELEGATES.

London, Jan. 28.—The Finnish diet has elected five delegates to look after Finland's interests in the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen.

FOUR KILLED AND FORTY INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Illinois Central Passenger Ditched by Broken Rail Near Granger

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Martin O Thompson of Sioux Falls, S. D., Mrs. T. J. Henderson, Sioux City, Iowa, Mrs. Thomas G. Henderson and Sidney Spitzer five months old, Chicago, were killed and forty others injured today when an Illinois Central passenger train bound from Omaha to Chicago was ditched by a broken rail near Granger, Ill.

The list of seriously injured, most of whom were brought to Chicago for treatment tonight, follows:

The Injured

Mrs. J. M. Byler, Manton, Iowa, a bride who was on her honeymoon; condition critical.

Miss Viola Berg, Lemars, Iowa.

Miss Jessie Craig, Sioux City, Ia.

Charles Esche, Iowa Falls, Iowa.

C. D. Thomas, Huntington, Ind., a soldier on his way from Camp Grant to Chicago.

Mrs. Arthur Trapp, Dubuque, Ia.

Among the less seriously injured were:

S. E. Bell, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

George Cameron, Fort Dodge, Ia.

Charles F. Miers, Sioux City, Ia.

A. J. Trapp, Dubuque.

The train was made up of the Omaha and Sioux City fliers with both engines to follow a snow plow that was driving a way thru the drifts. The train was running at about twenty miles an hour when it reached Granger at 2:10 o'clock.

The first warning came to the 150 passengers when the tender of the second locomotive left the rails with a crash and the long string of coaches piled up against it. Eight of the coaches broke loose and toppled down the twenty-five foot embankment.

Scores of persons were pinned under the wreckage and several soldiers coming from Camp Grant to Chicago with Major Henry L. Schelling went to their rescue. The work was retarded by the snow, however, and it was feared that many of the injured would die before they could be released.

Appeals for help were flashed to Chicago, Elgin and nearby points. Three bodsleds filled with doctors, nurses and volunteer shovelers to dig thru the drifts started from Elgin. A wrecking train carrying doctors and nurses also was rushed from Chicago.

Meanwhile the soldiers aided by uninjured passengers dug out the victims and removed the injured to nearby farm houses. Later the passengers from the wrecked train were taken on board the relief train with the injured in hospital cars and started for Chicago.

A. E. Clift, general manager of the railway, was in charge of the relief train. He said that an investigation had already been started but that it appeared that the wreck had been caused by split rails.

Eight coaches of the pasenger train left the rails and plunged down the steep embankment. Heavy snow along the tracks checked the fall and probably prevented a heavier loss of life. The snow also delayed the arrival of relief parties from Elgin and other nearby points.

The wreck occurred at the same spot at which a troop train from Chicago to Camp Grant was ditched a month ago. Engine No. 1087 which was pulling the troop train at the time of the wreck was also hauling the passenger train today.

USE COAL CARDS FOR CHICAGO CONSUMERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—The coal card was put into effect for Chicago consumers today, the second heatless Monday.

"We are feeding the coal out now in sugar spoon doses," said one large dealer. "The reason is that the coal is not in Chicago to be delivered."

Other large dealers were authority for the statement that the city's fuel situation was more critical at the present time than ever before. Because of storms and traffic blockades it was said that all the coal arriving in the city was being distributed to domestic consumers and that industrial plants were facing a further shutdown because of the shortage.

I. T. S. CAR HIT

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 28.—An Illinois Central train hit an Illinois Traction System car at the University avenue crossing of the Illinois Central in Champaign, Ill., tonight, and shoved it half a block. No one was seriouly hurt.

VERDICT RETURNED

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 28.—A jury in the branch circuit court today returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the $35,000 breach of promise to marry suit, brought by Miss Catherine Risk of Charleston, W. Va., against Albert Sleyman, importer of oriental rugs. The verdict was reacher late Saturday night, sealed, and read in court this afternoon.

BULLETINS

BERLIN, —an. 28.—via London. —It is officially announced that the Turkish cruiser Sultan Yawu Selim (formerly the German Cruiser Goeben) has been refloated and entered the Dardanelles.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Freight traffic thruout a large section of the eastern states was practically abandoned today on account of the blizzard conditions, according to reports received by A. H. Smith, regional director of railroads.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 28.—The government commissioners announce that diplomatic relations with Roumania have been broken and that the Roumanian legation and all the Roumanian representatives here will be sent out of the country by the shortest route.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—H. Raymond, president of the Clyde and Mallory Steamship Lines was named by the shipping board today controller of shipping for the port of New York. He will be given charge of all shipping board traffic entering and leaving the port.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Creation of a half billion dollar corporation to make loans and advances to enterprises essential to the war and otherwise assist in private financing was recommended to congress today by Secretary McAdoo. The secretary also asked that all private issues of securities of more than $100,000 be made subject to the approval of the government body to be known as the "war finance corporation."

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Forty lives were lost thru the sinking of the French Transport Drome and the trawler Kerbihan, which struck mines Jan. 23, within sight of Merseilles. The Drome first came into contact with a mine and the Kerbihan shortly afterwards struck another near the same place. Aviators later discovered mines in this region which immediately was swept in an endeavor to clear them away.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A preliminary agreement has been reached between the United States and Sweden, according to official dispatches from London today providing for the charter of Swedish ships to the United States to be used principally in the South American trade.

Some of the ships of the Swedish fleet now in American waters will be allowed to sail with their cargoes while others it is understood will be unloaded and put in the service of the service of the United States. Negotiations are proceeding in a satisfactory manner and a final agreement is looked for shortly.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 28.—John J. Halpin, former police captain of Chicago, who was sentenced to the state penitentiary at Joliet for conspiracy in connection with the police scandal in Cook county, has been granted a parole by the state division of pardons and paroles. Halpin will be liberated from prison in a short time, as the papers in the case were forwarded to Warden E. J. Murphy today.

Sergeant Edward O'Brien who was convicted with Halpin remains a prisoner and is eligible to present his case to the board for parole next month.

The board at its December session denied pardons to both men.

TRAFFIC COMPLETELY STOPPED BY BLIZZARDS

Washington, Jan. 28.—In the face of blizzards which completely stopped traffic on many eastern railroads today the handling of sufficient coal for homes and important war industries in the eastern half of the country became a more serious problem than at any time this winter. There was a general and heavy fall of snow today from the middle west to New York and it extended tonight into New England. In the middle west sleet storms interfered with traffic, while in some sections rain fell. Added to the concern of railroad administration officials over the continuance of cold weather and snow was the fear of floods which would follow a sudden thaw. In parts of West Virginia today railroad authorities reported streams swollen with melting snow were threatening interruption of coal transportation.

TODAY ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF M'KINLEY

COUMBUS, O., Jan. 26.—Tomorrow will be the 75th anniversary of the birth of President William McKinleyand the McKinley Carnation League of America today suggested that the custom of wearing a carnation, McKinley's favorite flower, on that day be omitted and there be substituted for it a small American flag. "Let the act be accompanied by thoughtful consideration so that the full meaning of it may sink into every loyal heart," says the league.

ITALIAN COMMUNICATION.

Rome, Jan. 28.—The war office communication issued today says:

"There have been patrol encounters which were favorable to us in the Val-Arsa and the Astied Valley. There was a successful action by our artillery against enemy positions between the Franezila Valley and the Brenta Canal. Lively aerial activity has taken place on the whole of the front."

LITTLE VARIANCE IN LIVESTOCK PURCHASES

Indicate Non-Competitive Distribution Between "Big Five"

Special Counsel Francis J. Heney Introduces Reports of Livestock Receipts, Shipments and Prices Into Record of Federal Trade Commission's Meat Packing Investigation.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Reports of livestocks receipts, shipments and prices, as received daily by the big packing concerns, were put into the record of the federal trade commission's meat packing investigation today as part of the evidence which Francis J. Heney, special counsel, said would show how the packers divide the supply and control the prices to their own advantage. Ownership of the stock yars and terminal railroads and directorships in many trunk line roads, Mr. Heney said, gave the packers an advantage in obtaining this information which nobodyelse could have. Walter Twombly, an investigator, testified that Swift & Co's. daily reports from all the big markets was required to be in by 7:30 a. m., and not later than 7:45, before the day's business began and furnished a basis on which all purchases were made.

Purchases of livestock, according to the packers' figures, varied little proportionately from year to year and conformed closely in percentage to figures previously introduced as indicating a non-competitive distribution between the "big five"—Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy and Wilson—of all the livestock buying in the United States. Thus, for instance Swift's purchases of cattle of all markets in 1913-1914 was 34.01 per cent of the whole, and in 1915-1916 was 34.58 per cent, while the same firm's purchase of hogs in 1913 were 36.57 percent and in 1916 were 36.04.

References to an agreement as to purchases were frequent in letters taken from the packers' files along with instructions to buyers to take a certain percentage of the cattle offered. Variations in price margins between the various markets also resulted in correspondence which Mr. Heney found introduced in relation to his charges that competition virtually had been eliminated between the packers.

"Make effort to get closer in line," was an instruction sent by Thomas E. Wilson to his firm's buyer, regarding the Oklahoma City market and the buyers replied that he had been telling his men for two weeks to "layback" and purchase less until the price was in line with Kansas City.

The same buyer also said he always instructed his men never to interfere with another buyer making a purchase "as we were only putting the cattle up on each other."

Senator Thompson of Kansas, took the stand during the day to make a statement regarding correspondence put in evidence characterizing him as a good man for the packers to "stay close to."

He testified that he had handled no business whatever for the packers. Mr. Heney told the commission that the correspondence had been introduced to show the packers' methods and not with any idea of reflecting on the senator, whom he felt sure to be innocent of anything improper.

Additional disclosures found in the packers' confidential files will be introduced tomorrow if delayed mail arrives.

WANTS $50,000 DAMAGES FOR MISTAKEN IDENTITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Damages totalling $750,000 were asked of two local retail firms in civil suits filed in the state supreme court here today by Alexander P. McCauley, Toronto mine owner who was arrested a year ago in St. Louis as being "Christmas" Keough, wanted for forgery. The case was considered one of the most noted instances of mistaken identity on record, McCauley having finally established that he was not Keough. He alleges his arrest was caused by the erroneous identification of him by representatives of Theodore B. Starr, Inc., jewelers and Brooks Brotehrs, inc., tailors. McCauley demands $500,000 of the first concern and one half that sum of the other.

TEN BROTHERS ON WAY TO ALLIED BATTLE FRONT

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Ten brothers, all Serbians, and sons of the same mother, who leave today on the first lap of the trip to the allied battle front, were embraced and kissed yesterday by General Mihilo Rasich of the Serbian war mission. The brothers, whose family name is Vojagic, with 190 other Serbians soldiers, were at a theater to greet their countrymen dressed in the colorful native dress of Serbia.

The ten brothers were taken upon the stage where they were saluetd by General Vosnitch, head of the mission and Governor Lowden of Illinois. The kissing followed.

The Vojagic boys come from Gary, Ind., where they were formerly employed. Their parents are still in Serbia.

RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN

Washington, Jan. 28.—Representative Frank P. Woods of Iowa was re-elected chairman of the Republican National congressional committee by unanimous vote at a meeting at the capitol tonight.

AIR RAIDERS IN TWO ATTACKS ON CITY OF LONDON

Hostile Airplanes Cross Coast—One Machine Brought Down

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—1:20 A. M.—It is officially announced that a second attack by air raiders was delivered on London after midnight, bombs being dropped about 12:30 a. m.

The communication just issued says the raid is still in progress.

London, Jan. 28.—Enemy airplanes dropped bombs on London between nine and ten o'clock this evening, according to an official communication issued tonight. One of the invading aircraft was brought down n Essex.

The text of the communication says:

"Hostile airplanes crossed the Kent and Essex coasts shortly before 8 o'clock this evening and proceeded toward London. Some of the machines penetrated to the capital where bombs wtre dropped between 9 and 10 o'clock.

"Th latest reports show that one enemy machine was brought down by our airmen in Essex."

Attacks by enemy men on London last night and early today lasted intermittently for nearly five hours and for two hours there was a heavy and almost continuous gun fire.

The members of the Royal Geographical Society with many ladies in the large audience were assembled to hear a speech by Lieutenant General J. O. Smuts. Sir Thomas Holdrich, the president announced that notice had just been received of an air raid and that the police informed him the audience would be safer if they went to the basement of the building. There were loud cries of "carry on" and the audience remained in the hall.

General Smuts spoke calmly for an hour amid reports of the guns. Afterward Walter Hume Long, colonial secretary paid a warm tribute to General Smuts and the African army which represented all units of the British empire. A majority of the theaters went thru with their performances with decreased audiences but some were idle because of failure of actors to arrive owing to the lateness of the suburban trains.

The raid was carried out by a considerable number of airplanes which followed the familiar tactics of attacking in relays. As far as could be seen not more than three or four airplanes broke thru the London defenses. The invaders were attacked by numbers of British machines.

U. S. AVIATORS IN DAYLIGHT RAID

With The American Army In France, Sunday, Jan. 28.—(By The Associated Press.)—Four American aviators attached to a French squadron have participated in a daylight bombing raid over Germany. All returned safely.

Because the weather was foggy aviators were unable to determine just what damage was done but as they flew fairly low over the targets, it is believed the results were good. Aftr recrossing the lines the bombers were fired on vigorously by enemy antiaircraft guns. They then ran into still heavier fog and some of the airmen were forced to land before reaching their hangers.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Robert Burton and a man by the name of Hawkins are held by the police in connection with the robbery of the Heller-Rose Jewelry store Saturday, which netted the thieves jewels valued at more than $100,000.

Burton's arrest followed information that some time ago he displayed a badge which he represented to be that of a detective. One of the jewelry store robbers displayed such a badge to employes.

HEARINGS NEARLY COMPLETED ON RAILROAD BILL.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Hearings on the administration railroad bill will be completed tomorrow by the house commerce committee. Interstate Commerce Commissioner Anderson, representing Director General McAdoo in his argument today urged quick action on the measure.

"Sunshine patriots" — those wealthy men who flinch when the pocket nerve is touched.

Russia's constituent assembly has decided that Russia's alliance with the allies is binding. But what power that assembly has to enforce the contract is not stated

Under the school law as amended by the general assembly last winter changing the time for them to begin their duties, county superintendents of schools are entitled to hold their offices until the first day in August.

POSTPONE ROAD BUILDING.

Governor Frank O. Lowden's stand that the Illinois $60,000,000 bond issue of a network of roads in Illinois will not be floated until the end of the war, is supported by Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture. In a bulletin the federal department urges the postponemut of all highways which are not based on important military or economic needs.

PRODUCTIVE TERRITORY.

The reason that Germany and Austria desire peace with the Ukraine portion of Russia is evident. The Ukraine is the most fertile part of Russia— the famous black soil country. It producesone-third of the cereals in the whole empire. It furnishes nine-tenths of the wheat exported from Russia. The annual production of sugar beets is 80 per cent of the entire Russian crop. Its richness in coal and iron surpasses that of other parts of the country. Sixty-two per cent of Russia's annual production of pig iron and 58 per cent of the steel output come from this section.

PLENTY OF SUGAR.

The Salt Lake Desert News sent the following dispatch to a number of leading Chicago grocers and several Chicago newspapers.

"According to press reports there is a serious sugar shortage in your city and vicinity. For your information we submit that there is now stored at the 20 or more beet sugar factories in Utah and Idaho over one million bags of sugar sufficient to keep moving a train of 40 cars per day for one month. This could be sent to Chicago on short notice if Government food administration and supreme railroad authority would unite in ordering shipments, furnishing cars and providing sugar trains right of way."

JEFFERSON BARRACKS.

There should be no politics charged where an honest attempt is being made to correct abuses. Decatur papers have been full of reports of abuses or worse in the conduct of affairs at Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis. Both Republican and Democratic papers in that city contain serious charges regarding the management there in connection with the death of a former student of Milliken university. The Herald says: "Jefferson barracks must take its place with the Black Hole of Calcutta. It is an American army post located on American soil. It is necessary to state this lest an uninformed neutral should gain the impression that our mobilization system is intended to aid the kaiser. Jefferson barracks is in St. Louis, not in Strasburg or Metz." It is hoped that a thoro investigation of affairs there may prove the statements unfounded or exaggerated. America has always had the reputation of taking good care of her enlisted men, and many who have returned here on furlough have not only been loud in praise of their treatment in camps but have shown by their appearance wonderful development and well-being.

"LESS."

The following poetic effusion is too good not to have an accredited author; but is an orphan floating about.

My Tuesdays are meatless,
My Wednesdays are wheatless.
I am getting more eatless each day;
My home it is heatless,
My bed it is sheetless,
They're all sent to the Y. M. C. A
The barrooms are treatless,
My coffee is sweatless,
Each day I get poorer and wiser;
My Stockings are feetless,
My trousers are seatless,
My God, but I do hate the kaiser!

FORCES WORKING FOR PEACE.

A well known and well posted citizen in talking of the hope of peace, at a Red Cross meeting a few days ago expressed hope of a peace parley soon, basing it on what he termed a coalition of two extremes among the powers and the socialist-financial representatives because they have been drained by the enormous demands for money in the past and for a continuance of a war that could mean only ruin and bankruptcy, the socialists because of the known fact that they are appealing for peace before spring, to save the world from further bloodshed. The gentleman above mentioned believes that a decisive result by force of arms could not be reached for years to come, and that only by the forces exerted by exhausted financiers and socialists and the mass of people of these countries suffering untold hardships could the war be terminated. Every day's developments seem to add to the accuracy of his views. Philip Scheidmann, majority socialist leader addressing the Reichstag criticising Chancellor Von Hertling's reply to President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George, said::

"Suppose we beat France?" he demanded. "Would that mean peace?" No we must still beat America."

Recalling that the kaiser had been openly insulted in the streets of Vienna he declared: "Our conservatives demand that we be freed from Austrian peace efforts. They will manage to make us lose our last friend. A complete and honorable reinstatement of Belgium is our duty. Let us try to save the world from new bloodshed in the spring."

Suffering in Austria is said to be increasing and German papers admit that Austrian strikes were designed to force that government to make peace. Rome hears thru diplomatic channels that the "Austrian situation is sufficiently alarming to justify senastional developments and is apt to hasten peace." The process of disintegration may be going on.

But with Germany the situation is not so plain and one cannot give full credence to their peace averments, but it is becoming more evident that both Germany and Austria are aware that whatever they may do in the presecution of the war must be done with appalling sacrifice of life and that there is more than a possimility of their failure in the end, and they may suffer less of loss and humiliation by listening to the voice of the two extremes—the financiers and the socialists

Our Jacksonville financier seems to have some ground for his hope of peace.

Conservation Talks.

This conservation talk is wise, when sprung by people safe and sane who know where moderation lies, and have no schemes absurd and vain. But now we're going to extremes, which is our tendency, alas! And we are airing hop joint dreams for bringing victory to pass. The faddist makes a folish sound, and tries to regulate my coop; the piffle vendor goes around and tells me how to salt my soup. "Let's win the war by eating prunes," I hear the noisy alecks call; If you eat fowl," cry other loons, "devour the feathers, bones and all!" "We can bring near the dawn of peace," some other locoed spielers say, "by spreading bread with axle grease, and making tea of last year's hay." They tell me I am in the wrong, because I have an extra cap; they say I wear my pants too long, since cloth will help to win the scrap. They tell me I do grevious hurt to every noble solder lad, because I have a Sunday shirt, and wear a cistly liver pad. Now I'll conserve with any man, do every sane and useful thing; but I'll adopt no foolish plan that any noisy nut may spring.

TO CAREFULLY CONSIDER AGRICULTURAL CLAIMS

Local Exemption Board Likely to Advise With Food Administraton Forces Thruout the County—May Thus Obtan Accurate Facts About Each Agriculturist.

Altho the plan has not yet been definitely adopted, it is probable that members of the Morgan county food administration forces will be asked to give the local exemption board opinions and advice with reference to men of the draft age who can be spared from Morgan county, Mr. Weir, Dr. Black and Mr. Hairgrove have talked over the matter informally and it is probable that thru Mr. Dunlap as chairman that advice mentioned will be sought.

The questionaires on file include the names of about 1,000 men who are engaged in agriculture in some way. A number of the men are farm owners living on farms and others are the sons of farm owners who are engaged in agriculture and still others are farm employes. The local board members realize that agriculture is really the greatest industry in this county and feel that to take away a very large number of men actively engaged in agricultural work means not only a distinct loss to the county but would be also a loss to the whole country in food production—the very thing which the national food administraton is now tryng to obviate.

Are In Touch With Conditions

The county food administration includes a representative for each precinct and when organization is completed will mean a representative on every section of land in the country. It is therefore reasonable to assume that the precinct representatives will be in accurate touch with the exact agricultural conditions in their precincts. These men know the farms and the farmers and are in excellant position to judge of those who can best be spared. Of course it will not be possible to exempt all the men who are in agricultural work but by not going at the matter carefully and seeking the advice of those intimately in touch with the situaton, the local board feels that the real facts can be obtaned. In this way it seems likly that men can be so selected from the country precincts that the sum total of crop production in this county will not be lessened.

May Call Conference

As already indicated, it is hoped to follow this polcy not only for the good of the county but for the good of the country at large. And, as indicated, this whole policy has not yet been definitely determined upon but it is likely that the food administration forces wll be asked for information and s uggestions. And it is also possible that all the precinct representatives will be called into conference and the whole plan discussed. If this is done the board can present thru the conference the names of agriculturists of draft age and the facts about each one be brought out. It is possible that such a conference may be held, the plan outlined and then a later conference held with the expectation that the precinct men during the interim will gather any facts about the drafted men in their localities with which they are not already familiar. At any rate it is the definite plan of the local board to handle the whole matter of agricultural claims in the most just manner possible, keeping in view the importance of agriculture to this community.

TRACTOR SCHOOL TO BE HELD IN THIS CITY

International Harvester Company Announces School to Teach Tractor Operation to Farmers.

A school of instruction has been arranged for this county by the International Harvester Co. of America, to be held here Friday and Saturday, Feb. 1 and 2 beginning at 9 o'clock each morning. There are in Morgan county many owners of Titan and Mogul tractors, and the company's purpose in holding the school is to teach these men how to operate their tractors to the best advantage, and how to increase the capacity and efficiency of the machines. The instruction given is of a personal type and will aid also in the handling of stationary engines, automobiles and various other mechanical devices on the farm. A number of charts and diagrams will be used in connection with the lectures, and practical instruction given on operation, care and maintenance of the tractor, mechanical oilers, fuels, cylinders, ignition, spark plugs, magnetos, valves, governor and various parts, together with a full explanation of the construction of the tractor.

There is now a demand for tractors never before equalled and it is probable that many farmers who have not previously considered the matter seriously will determine to become owners of tractors and other power farm machinery. The unusual demand for tractors is largely due to the working of the selective draft law, which has so materially affected the farm help situation.

The fact that there are many International Harvester Co. tractors now in use in this vicinity and the further fact that this is the first school planned here on such liberal lines, make it practically certain that the attendance at the sessions Friday and Saturday will be large. Many men attend the state universities and automobile schools for the purpose of obtaining such information as will be imparted, and the fact that it is possible to get such valuable knowledge free should attract the attention of every farmer in the county. A question box is a part of the plan and all are urged to ask questions along any line pertaining to the operation and care of tractors. This feature will commence at 3 o'clock each afternoon during the school.

WAR OFFICE STATEMENT.

London, Jan 28.—The war office today issued a statement on the operations of the British forces in Italy. It says:

"Owing to better visibility recently, our artillery has carried out much successful counter-battery work and bombardment.

"Our aircraft have been active in aerial combats and reconnaissance work. Six enemy machines and two balloons were shot down in the last week.

"The total hostile aircraft destroyed since the end of November when our machines commenced operations were 37 enemy machines shot down and two brought down out of control; four balloons were burned. Only five of our machines are missing."

ADDITIONAL DETAILS.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 28.—Passengers arriving from the state capital today brought confirmation and additional details of the train holdup by rebels on the Mexican Central between Corralitos and Rellano, 30 miles south of Jiminez last Wednesday. Thirty five passengers and train guards were killed, fifteen young women were carried away by the rebels and all the passengers robbed of their valuables and stripped of their clothing. The band was thought o have been in command ot Canuto Reyes.

HEAVY RAINS FALL

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28.—Heavy rains which fell last night over the entire mountain district of southeastern Kentucky caused Weather Forecaster Walz to send warning of impending floods today to all points along the lower Kentucky river. Reports today from the headwaters of the Kentucky and Cumberland rivers told of flooded towns, log booms broken and bridges swept away. Barberville, Middlesboro and Pittsville on the Cumberland river and Jackson, in Breathitt county on the Kentucky river, are reported as partly under water. No loss of life has been reported.

C. P. WOULD CLOSE LITTLE INDIAN STATION

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 28.—In a petition filed with the public utilities commission today the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad company asks permission to close its stations at Fidelity, Maxwell, Tice, Bishop, Parkland and Little Indian contending insufficient business to warrant mantaining agents at these towns.

SAFEGUARD AGAINST BREAKDOWNS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—As a safeguard against a possible breakdown of electric power plants at East St. Louis, Alton and other river points whtre munitions are being manufactured the Illinois Public utilities commission today conferred with engineers of utility companes supplying power to these manufactories to learn what opportunities there are for interchange of current.

DR. EDW. DUNCAN'S LONG LIFE CLOSED MONDAY

Deceased Had Long Been Prominent Here in Professional and Business Circles—Funeral Will be Held Wednesday Afternoon.

After a long and useful life, Dr. Edward Duncan died Monday night at 10:15 o'clock at his home on East State street. His passing came after a ten days' illness with bronchial pneumonia, altho for a considerambles period he had been in weakened health. Dr. Duncan came to Jacksonville in 1876 and was actively engaged in the practice of dentistry until 1907. At that time as a result of injuries sustained by a fall, he gave up active work and in the years following there were various periods of illness.

Born in Beaver county, Pa., August 15, 1838, Edward Duncan attended the district schools there after the years of his childhood and subsequently was a student at Beaver academy. When he had finished his course there for a period of twelve years he was engaged as a school teacher, serving in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois.

Served in War of Rebellion.

Early in the war of the Rebellion he heard the call to arms and on August 9, 1862, enlisted in Co. J, 134th Pa. Volunteer infantry. With the Army of the Potomac he took part in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. It was given to him and members of his regiment following the battle of Fredericksburg to endure great hardships, as for weeks the troops were without tents or overcoats and the weather was bitterly cold. It was as a result of exposure that he suffered an attack of typhoid pneumonia which later developed rheumatism and hernia, which bothered him all the remaining days of his life. His long wartime illness, as indicated, was the result of exposure for with his comrades after sleeping many nights under the winter sky he waded thru the cold waters of the Rappahannock and in his enfeebled condition he readily became a prey to disease. Dr. Duncan's war record was notable in many ways and at the battle of Antietam he was one of four survivors of his company.

A Pioneer in Dentistry.

After the close of the war Dr. Duncan located in 1868 at Cerro Gordo, where he was engaged in teaching work. Subsequently he entered upon the study of dental surgery, and in 1866 graduated from the Baltimore college of dental surgery, the oldest institution of its kind in the U. S. Almost immediately after graduation he located in this city and in a comparatively short time had built up an extensive practice. He was one of the first dentists to use nitrous oxide anaesthesia in the extraction of teeth and he was also a pioneer in other lines of dental practice. Dr. Duncan continued actively in practice for more than thirty years and his interest in dentistry did not cease even at the time of his retirement.

Was Unusually Successful

The deceased was identified all thru the years with Centenary M. E. church. He long served as class leader, was a trustee, a member of the board of stewards and served in other capacities in the church organization. He aided the services by his presence until within a few weeks of his going. As a member of the school board Dr. Duncan was of real value to his constituents. He was a man of strong ideas and ideals. He was willing to concede to others the right of opinion and was like adamant in the maintenance of his own positions. When he had determined upon a course of right, nothing could swerve him from it, and this general steadfastness of character and spirit was manifested in his public work. Altho a professional man, Dr. Duncan was unusually successful in a business way. He had unusual vision and acumen in business affairs and for that reason his opinions were highly regarded and his counsel often sought.

An Independent in Politics

Dr. Duncan was made a Mason at Cerro Gordo, Ill., and subsequently took the chapter degrees at Champaign. In politics in earlier years he was identified with the Republican party but strong ideas on the temperance question later led him to espouse the cause of prohibition. He might, however, be termed an independent in politics, for it was his custom to support the men and measures that he believed to be best.

The deceased was married March 16, 1869, at Seymour, Ind., to Miss Emily Ruddick who survivez him. Their long married life of nearly half acentury has been marked by unusual devotion and the separation comes now with special severity to Mrs. Duncan, who has been in very frail health for the past two years. Two children were born to them, Helen M., who passed away on May 4, 1900, and Dr. William P. Duncan, surviving. Deceased also leaves three brothers, James of Ohio, Joseph of Virginia, and Howard of Beaver County, Pa. One brother, Robert, passed away only a few weeks since at Pittsburg, Kans.

As before stated, it was in 1907 that Dr. Duncan was struck by a horse in such a way that he fell and a broken hip resulted. From that time on at intervals there came periods of weakness and illness and it is likely that the cause of his death dates from the injury mentioned.

Placed First Things First

By his going Jacksonville has lost a citizen of unostentatious manners and life but a successful man who walked uprightly, placed his confidence in God and so moved steadily onward and upward. He was a man who disliked display, who thought more of underlying facts than he did of surfaces, and so he placed a high estimate on the right values of life. For him in truth, the fiual summons meant but a crossing to a world of larger opportunities and greater blessings.

The funeral services will be held at the late residence, 360 East State street, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

STRONG OFFENSIVE EXPECTED

Washington. Jan. 28.—The flow of men, munitions and supplies from America to France is the objective on which Germany will center her strongest offensive this spring, it is announced in Secretary Baker's weekly war review. U-boats which have been operating in the Atlantic lanes have been recalled to their home ports for repairs in preparation for the drive on trans-Atlantic shipping.

Secretary Baker points out that the submarine attacks probably will be accompanied by the expected German drive on the west front.

RED GUARDS CUT TELEGRAPH WIRES.

London, Jan. 28.—A Reuter Limited despatch from Stockholm says that since 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning, telegraphic communication between Stockholm and Petrograd has been interrupted, and that the telegraph station at Nystad has reported that red guards have cut the wires.

"Finland thus is isolated," says the correspondent. "Complete anarchy prevails thruout Finland. The misery of the population has been increased by a declaration of the Bolsheviki government that it considers itself compelled by reason of its principles to support the Finnish revolutionaries in their struggle against the Bourgeoise."

Interment in Yatesville cemetery.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ENROLLMENT AND THE WAR

Enrollment in American public schools has been affected by the war, but not to the extent of making it less than last year, according to figures compiled by the Department of the Interior thru the Bureau of Education. Figures from 1,411 cities and 696 counties or districts show an increase of close to the normal amount of 2½ per cent in elementary schools. In high schools, however, the increase is only one-fourth of the usual 9½ per cent.

Such increase as there is in high school enrollment is caused by the girl students. Fewer boys are enrolled this year in every class in high schol except the fourth, apparently there is a healthy tendency for boys in the senior years to remain and graduate.

In city elementary schools the increase in enrollment is actually somewhat above normal; but in city high schools there is a marked falling off, especially among the boys.

Country schools show some gain over last year both in elementary and high school enrollment, but not as great as would be expected under normal conditions. Rural high schools show increases for both boys and girls, despite the war.

When the Skin Seems Ablaze With Itching and Burning

There's just one thing to do. If your skin seems ablaze with the fiery burning and itching of Eczema, real and lasting relief can only come from treatment that goes below the surface—that reaches down to the very source of the trouble. So-called skin-diseases come from a disordered condition of the blood, and the proper treatment is through the blood.

Search far and near, and you cannot find a blood remedy that approaches S. S. S. for real efficiency. BAKER ASSURES NATION MILLION MORE TO FOLLOW changed his weapons of attack and his methods of defense; that the stories they were telling us were true when they left England and France, but an entirely different thing was probably taking place there now, and they told us of large supplies of weapons of one kind and another which they had developed in France and England and which, even before they got them in sufficient quantity manufactured to take them from the industrial plants to the front, were superseded by new ideas and had to be thrown into the scrap heap.

"Therefore it became necessary for us to have eyes there in instant communication with us and we sent over to France General Pershing, and we sent with him not merely a division of troops but we sent with him perhaps I can say safely the major part of the trained, expert personnel of the army. You know the size of the official corps of the regular army in this country when the war broke out. It was a pitiful handful of trained men and yet it was necessary to divide them up and send over to France officers of the highest quality so that they would be at the front and see in the workshops and in the factories and in the war offices and in the armies, where consultations would take place immediately back of the front—so that they could see the thing with their own eyes and send us back the details by cable every day of the changing character of this war.

"General Pershing's staff of experts and officers over there runs into the thousands and they are busy every minute and every day I get cablegrams from General Pershing from 10 to 16 to 20 pages long, filled with measurements and formulas and changes of a military size and changed this week and need to be changed again this week so that what we are doing at this end is attempting by using the eyes of the army there to keep up to what they want us to do.

"If one gets the idea this is the sort of war we used to have, or if he gets the idea this is a static thing it is an entirely erroneous idea, and when you remember that we had to divide this little handful of officers that we had and send so large a part of them to France, and then think of those who remained at home, you will realize that those who remained here had the double duty, insufficient for either aspect of it in numbers—and they still have this double duty—they had to go forward with manufacturers, work out industry and industrial relations, they had to see about supplies of raw materials and manufacture of finished products and make from day to day alterations and changes that had to be made and they had to be ingenious with suggestions to see whether they could devise on this side something which had not been thought of over there. * * * * *

"As a consequence this little group which stayed here have built the great special departments of the army. The ordnance department starting I think with 93 or 96 officers has now, something like 3,000 officers. They have had to be trained; they have had to be specialized and this has had to go on contemporaneously with this tremendous response to the changing conditions on the other side. * * * *

"At the outset the idea was that we would be a financial and industrial assistance to our allies during the year 1918, and I think I probably can read from the Metropolitan magazine for August a suggestion which will show what the current expectation of the country was. The editor of the Metropolitan magazine was protesting against what he believed to be the intention of the government at that time."

Here Senator Weeks interrupted to ask if that was the magazine of which Theodore Roosevelt is associate editor. Secretary Baker replied that Mr. Roosevelt was a contributing editor, and continued:

"This magazine came out in August, 1917, and this editorial says:

"'Since it is our war, we want to put everything into it so as to finish it in the shortest possible time, so that the world may be restored. To our mind the whole plan of the war department has been flavored with a desire to hold off until the allies finish the war for us.'

"You see the editor was dealing with what he supposed to be the intention of the war department at that time, that we were holding off so far as actual military operations were concerned and letting the allies do the fighting.

"What he says we should have done and I ask your particular attention to it is:

"'We should have strained every energy to have gotten from 50,000 to 100,000 men to France this year.'

"That is the year 1917. I tell no secret but it is perfectly well known to everybody in this group that we have far exceeded what in August, 1917, was regarded as a program so ideal to the editor of this magazine refers to it as a thing which we ought to have strained every nerve in a vain but hopeless effort to accomplish."

In response to a question by Chairman Chamberlain the Secretary said the United States did not have more than the minimum number of men in France in August, 1917. He continued:

"And then the editor goes on:

"'And by next year, 1918, we could have had 500,000 men to send over, or any part of 500,000 men which we could ship.'

"Now instead of having 50,000 or 100,000 men in France in 1917, we have more men than that in France instead of having a half million we could ship to France if we could find any way to do it in 1918, so will have more than one half million in France early in 1918 and we will have available if the transportation facilities are available to us and the prospect is not an unpromising one and one half million who in 1918 can be shipped to France."

Senator Weeks asked whether the Secretary knew who wrote the editorial and Mr. Baker said he thought it was attributed to Mr. Wiggin, the editor in chief.

"Why," asked Senator Chamberlain, "have you not felt it proper to let the public into your confidence with reference to the things that you are telling now?"

"Senator, I confess I have hesitated and I still hesitate," replied the secretary. "I have here a statement from Field Marshal von Hindenburg, in which he is quoted as saying in a German newspaper in contemptuous fashion of us, that we have advertised our preparations for this war in an unworthy manner."

"Do you think, for a moment, Secretary Baker," said the chairman, "that there has been any time within the past year that the German secret service has not been fully advised as to everything we have done?"

Thinks Germans Mystified

"Yes, senator, I know. If I may rely upon the confidential information which we get from confidential sources, the German government is still mystified as to the number of men we have in France, or have had there at any time."

The chairman said he doubted this. After some discussion as to the policy of governments in announcing military secrets, Mr. Baker said it was not the policy of the American or other governments to do so and added:

"It may be that the precaution is unnecessary and yet that is the precaution which military men have observed and I have no further point to make in the matter of the number of troops there than to show as I was showing when I read that extract, that our original intention was to make our military effort in 1918; and in August of 1917 a zealous advocate of immediate military activity laid down as the maximum obtainable program a thing which has since been multifold exceeded.

"Why did we decide to send some troops to France in 1917? It is no secret. The French people had suffered, suffered in a way that not only our language is not adapted to describe, but our imagination cannot conceive. The war is in their country, this wolf has not only been at their door, but he has been gnawing for two years and a half at their vitals, and when this unsuccessful offensive in France had gone on there was a spirit not of surrender but of fate about the French people and this mighty military engine which they had seen prepared to overcome them for forty years was at them and their attitude was that no matter whether every Frenchman died in his tracks as they were willing to do or not that it was an irresistible thing and so they said to us 'frankly it will cheer us; it will cheer our people if you send over some of your troops.'

"We did send some troops.

"At that place we had a choice. We could have sent over, as Great Britain our regular army and in a very short preparation have put it into action and suffered exactly what Great Britain suffered with her 'contemptible little army' as it was called by their adversaries. Our army would have given as good an account of itself as the British army did, but it would have been destroyed like the British army, and there would have been no nucleus on which to build this new army that was to come over a little later, and it was deemed wiser to send over a regular division; but not to send over our whole regular army at that time.

"Then what happened was that that regular division went over and the people of France kissed the hems of their garments as they marched up the streets of Paris, veterans, wounded in this war, legless or armless, stumping along on crutches, perhaps, as they went up the streets of Paris with their arms around the neck of American soldiers. Not a single man in that division was unaccompanied by a veteran. America had gone to France and the French people rose with a sense of gratitude and hopefulness that had never been in them before. Of course they welcomed the British, but their need was not so great when the British went. * * * * *

"We decided not to send the regular army as a whole, but send regular divisions and national guard divisions, selected according to the state of their preparation and keep back here some part of our trained force in order that it might inoculate with its spirit and its training these raw levies which we were training and one after another divisions have gone over until in France there is a fighting army, an army trained in the essentials and in the beginnings of military discipline and practice and trained, seasoned fighters in this kind of a war on the actual battlefields where it is taking place. * * * * * * * *

"In a very short time we had organized engineering regiments of railroad men and sent them over there and were rebuilding behind the lines of the British and French the railroads which were being carried forward with their advance, reconstructing their broken engines and cars, building new railroads both back of the French and British lines and those regiments were of such quality that at the Cambrai assault, carried on by General Byng when the Germans made their counter-attack our engineer regiments threw down their picks and spades and carried their rifles into the battle and distinguished themselves by gallant action in the war itself. * **

"Our surgeons have set up hospitals immediately behind the lines. They have been made military in every sense of the word. It was suggested that further groups of mechanics might be needed. The question that had to be then answered was, how will we maintain an army in France? Special studies had to be made of that problem. * * * * *

"In other words France was a white sheet of paper so far as we were concerned and on that we had not only to write an army, but we had to write the means of maintaining that army, and from the first time when a careful and scientific study of the opportunities of France to help us were made, from that hour until this, we have been building in France, facilities, instruments, agencies, just as many as we are here in the United States and more—many of them of the same character. * * * * * *

"We have had to take over, and are rebuilding and amplifying a railroad—hundreds of miles long—in order to carry products from ports of disembarkation to our general bases of operation. And all of that gentleman has to be done, not only studied out, as a necessary thing to do, but when so studied out and reported here the manufacturers for those things have to be carried on in this country and the things shipped over there, nails, cross ties, spikes, fishplates, engines, cars, buildings. We have had to build ordnance depots and repairs shops and great magazines of supply in the interior. All of that problem has been carrying forward step by step. * * * * * * *

"We have had to build barracks over there for our soldiers and in the meantime to billet them around in the French villages. Building barracks over there and building them here is a very different thing, gentlemen.

"When we summoned the lumber industry of this country to produce the lumber to build our own cantonments it came in a great and steady stream from all over the country, but when we talk about building barracks in France it means this: It means we have organized regiments of foresters and sending them over into the forests of France which they have assigned to us for our use, cutting down the trees, setting up saw mills, making the lumber of various sizes, transporting it to the places where it is to be used and then finally using it.

"On the other hand it has been necessary for us to build hospitals. It has been necessary for the surgeon general's staff to be divided and to select supplies and procure materials and to send over staffs of trained persons to supervise construction of these hospitals and to men them and equip them. All of that has gone on contemporaneously with the work which has been done in this country. * * * *

"What might have been a perfectly acceptable plan as to major operations prior to the change in the Russion situation or prior to the change in the Italian situation, had to be restudied and for that reason among others, there is now organized as you know in France, pursuant to the suggestion of Mr. Lloyd George, the Rapello conference or the supreme war council and the United States is represented on that by the chief of staff of the American army and the major international arrangements in regard to the military are worked out there, while General Pershing and his staff of experts are working out those other questions.

"That is a picture of what has been going on over there, gentlemen. On this side much of that has had to be done, and in addition to it, all the things we have done and I ask you to remember among the achievements on this side is the building of this army, not of 50,000 or 100,000 or 500,000, but of substantially a million and one half men.

"And now, let me be frank with you and let your judgment be frank with me about this. Has any army in history, ever, since the beginning of time, been so raised and cared for as this army has? Can the picture be duplicated? We have raised this army, taking the regular army and the national guard, raising it to war strength and supplementing it by the operation of a draft and there are senators in this room who said to me with grief when we proposed that that form of raising the soldiers should be had, they shook their heads and said: 'Mr. Secretary, it can't be done. It is too sudden to address to the American people that mode of selecting soldiers.' And yet, has any great enterprise within the knowledge of any man in this room ever been carried out with more unfailing justice, with more intelligent legislation and commendation to the good sense of patriotism of the American people and has any great and revolutionary change in our mode of practice ever been accepted so splendidly as the operation of the selective service system. We have got those young men in camp and they are surrounded from the day they left home until the day they come back to it (if in God's providence they can come back) with more agencies for their protection and comfort and health and happiness, physical, spiritual and mental, than any army that ever went out on a field. * * * * *

"Men who have mechanical instincts and training will be given mechanical opportunities in the army. The 'round' man is not to be put in the 'square' place. The American people have subscribed liberally for the purpose. The Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the Y. W. C. A., the Training Camp Activities committee, the Training Camp Athletic committee and the Red Cross have all been brought into live with the soldiers and by virtue of activities started in the war department the communities which surround these camps have been instantly gotten away from the notion which used to prevail of a certain alienation between a civilian and soldier group and these soldiers boys in these camps have been adopted into the homes and hearts of people among whom they live. No such relation has ever existed between an army and a civilian population as exists with regard to this.

"And then with your aid the army has been able to practically stamp out intemperance and vice among the soldiers, by the establishment of zones, by the establishment of patrol systems of one kind and another, by the training of these young officers in these training camps, young men of experience and fine feeling and all that, we have gotten into this great army the idea that it can be a strong and effective military army and still be free from things which ave hitherto weakened and sapped the vitality and virility of armies."

At the request of the chairman Mr. Baker put into the record a statement showing the number of hospitals, army and Red Cross, established in France with the number of the personnel of each.

The secretary conclude as follows:

"The wonderful work done by the engineering department of the army when it is all told, Mr. Chairman, will be a story which I am sure your committee will be glad to report to the senate of the United States as being a tremendous response to a tremendous responsibility and when you have made this investigation I know that the American people will feel, as I think they have a right to feel, that we are in this war to win it, that we are in it to hit and to hit hard, that we are in it to coordinate our strength with that of our associates, that the problem is not one of individual star playing but of team play, with these veterans and experienced persons under actual battle conditions; that more has been done perhaps, than the country expected, more than the wisest in the country thought was possible to do.

"Insofar as I am personally concerned, I know what is ahead of us. I know what the American feeling about this war is. Everybody is impatient to do as much as we can. There will be no division of counsel, there will be all the criticism there ought to be upon short comings and failures, there will be so far as the war department is concerned a continuing effort at self-improvement, and an hospitality toward every suggestion for improvement that can come from the outside, but the net result is going to be that a united people believing in themselves and in their stitutions are going to demand and that at no late day, on European battlefields that facing veterans tho they be, they cannot excel us in achievement and when the victory is won over there Mr. Chairman, the credit which will come to American enterprise and to American determination and to American courage will be an honor to us as the tenacity of purpose and splendid achievements of the British and French already shed great lustre on the names of the great people."

BANDITS USE SNOW DRIFTS AS BARRICADES

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Snow drifts were used as barricades last night by five bandits and the police in a fifteen minute revolver battle before the police received reinforcements to surround the quintet.

The five men, all of whom are Italians, were challenged by police when they tried to enter the guarded home of an Italian who has been threatened with death by black hand members after he refused to comply with their demands for $5,000. His home has been guarded by police since a bomb was thrown into it a month ago.

WILL CONTINUE INVESTIGATION OF SO-CALLED GERM PLOT

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—Despite a statement from Red Cross authorities at Chicago that charges of a plot here to innoculate bandages with disease germs were without basis, it was stated at the office of District Attorney E. C. Knotts today that the circumstances were sufficiently suspicious to warrant a thorough federal investigation.

It was announced on Saturday that a scrap of German newspaper discovered in a bale of non-absorbant cotton in a Red Cross workshop here contained organisms discovered on analysis to be deadly.

MOTORMEN AND CONDUCTORS STRIKE.

East St. Louis, Jan. 28.—Five of the twelve interurban lines of East St. Louis and Suburban Railway were idle this morning as a result of the strike of 35 motormen and conductors who refused to work under a new schedule of hours announced by the company. A meeting will be held today at which an attempt will be made to adjust matters.

TO CAMPAIGN AGAINST INDIANS

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 28. — Two thousand Mexican federal cavalry will leave Juarez overland for the state of Sonora to participate in the campaign against the Yaqui Indians, it was announced here at the general consulate late today.

3,000 PERSONS RIOT

Zurich, Jan. 28.—Three thousand persons took part in a riot in a suburb of Prague on Friday against regulation of the flour rations, a Vienna despatch says. Shop windows were smashed and the mob had begun to plunder the stocks when the police interfered. The rioters were dispersed with difficulty.

TURK TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Detroit, Jan. 28.—Merke sAli, said to be a general in the Turkish army, is in custody at police headquarters pending an investigation today by government and Detroit officials. It is understood that several documents of an important nature were found in the prisoner's room. Government agents admitted that he has been in custody since Thursday.

TO REVIVE BOXING IN CHELSEA.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 25.—After a lapse of a dozen years boxing is to be revived in the town of Chelsea next week, when a club recently formed by business men of the town will ring up the curtain with an all-star show. For many years, until the lid was clamped down in 1906, Chelsea was one of the high points on the pugilistic map. The proximity of Chelsea to Boston proved a great factor in the success of the several clubs that flourished in the town during the early part of the last decade. During the years from 1904 to 1906 nearly every fighter of prominence in those days appeared at one time or another in the Chelsea rings. Altho no attempt was made to pull off championship affairs the old time ring fans of this vicinity are able to recall many a rattling good bout held in the suburban town. Jack Johnson appeared there with Sandy Ferguson as an opponent in 1905 and the next year he returned for his first ring engagement with Sam Langford.

Other noted fighters of a decade or two ago who frequently displayed their wares before the Chelsea clubs included Al Kaufman, Young Peter Jackson, Joe Walcott, Joe Jeannette, Benny Yanger, Clarence Forbes, Dave Deshler, Kid Goodman, Tommy Murphy, Aurelia Herrera, Young Corbett, Joe Thomas, Honey Mellody, Jack Blackburn Willie Lewis, Matty Baldwin and the Sullivan Twins.

It is computed that only one man in 200 is over six feet tall.

Neighbor Told Her Cure for Lumbago

Rheumatism and lumbago are awful things and cause great pain and misery, but Foley Kidney Pills can rout them.

Mrs. G. H. Eveland, Duncan Mills, Ill., writes the following letter: "I was stricken down with lumbago and was unable to turn myself in bed. A neighbor brought me a half bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, and said she had been similarly afflicted and that they had helped her. So I tried them and was completely relieved by the use of two or three bottles. I have had splendid success with them and have never known them to fail. I most heartily recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

Foley Kidney Pills tone up weak, inactive, sluggish kidneys, rid the body of poisons, give appetite, energy and refreshing sleep after pain. Don't neglect kidney trouble. Remove the cause with Foley Kidney Pills.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

For Bilious Troubles

That heavy headache, torpid liver, sick stomach, bitter taste in mouth, furred tongue, dull eyes and muddy skin, all come from a poor supply of bile. These unhealthy conditions are promptly corrected by

BEECHAM'S PILLS

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quickly healing the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth), into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have a full pint—a family supply—of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Itching Torture

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation and that makes the skin soft, clear and healthy.

Any druggist can supply you with zemo, which generally overcomes all skin diseases. Acne, eczema, itch, pimples, rashes, blackheads, in most cases give way to zemo. Frequently, minor blemishes disappear overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid, clean, easy to use and dependable. It costs only 35c; an extra large bottle, $1.00. It will not stain, is not greasy or sticky and is positively safe for tender, sensitive skins.

LAST RITES SAID FOR MIS SEMMA CAPPS

Rev. F. B. Madden Paid Beautiful Tribute to Deceased—Mrs. Wilson Sang—Rev. John McCabe of Delaware, Ohio, Sent Memorial.

Funeral services for Miss Emma Capps were held from the residence, 518 North Church street Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in charge of the Rev. Frederic B. Madden, pastor of Grace church. Dr. Joseph R. Harker offered prayer. Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson sang two solos.

In his brief address Mr. Madden spoke of the impression prevalent, that the advance of modern science had undermined faith in immortality and then showed how the most recent theories of science have strengthened rather than weakened the arguments for and the conviction of immortality. He quoted ennyson's words as voicing the faith of Christian philosophy based on modern science.

"Thou wilt not leave us in the dust,
Thou modest man, he knows not why;
He thinks he was not made to die;
And thou hast made him, Thou art just."

He paid the following beautiful personal tribute:

"The life of Miss Emma Capps had three notable characteristics. It was unique, gentle, altruistic. Seldom is it given to a person to live for almost four score years in one home.

"Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Capps came from Kentucky in 1838, and after one year at Waverly they came to this city. On the 20th of Dec. 1839, Emma was born and her entire life has been lived in this house. A part of the old residence was burned, but part of it is part of this building. All the family life—its births, its marriages, its deaths—its laughter and its tears—has centered around this fireside. Our modest sister quietly graced its festive scenes, generously shared it's toil and bravely carried its sorrow. With father and mother and sister Mattie gone and Emma only dwelling within these dear familiar walls, she must have had a very keen realization of Whittier's feelings when he wrote the pathetic words:

"How strange it seems, with so much gone
Of life and love to still live on."

Another unique feature of our sister's life was the manner in which it reversed itself. In youth she loved music, became a proficient pianist and gave herself to the profession as a teacher. Then a sudden break in her health compelled an outdoor life and she fell in love with nature and gave herself to the cultivation of flowers and to gardening. This reversal of her habits prolonged her life to the mature age of 78 years, 1 month and 5 days.

"Her life was a practical illustration of the Psalmist's words: 'Thy gentleness hath made me great.' For hers was the greatness of goodness and her beautiful, sincere humility, forbids fulsome eulogy! But her friends can never forget her sweet smile, her cheerful tho timid disposition, her retiring but winsome manner, her modest but unselfish service.

"Altruism, love of others, was the dominant note in the life of Miss Capps. She was graduated from the I. W. C. in the class of 1859, the first class to graduate under the presidency of Dr. Adams. It was a class of 21 young ladies, one of whom was Mary James, a sister of President James, of the University of Illinois. Four members of the class are living in this city: Mrs. Christine Armstrong, Mrs. Samuel Metcalf, Mrs. Anna Ross Dewey and Miss Mary Caldwell. Miss Capps completed the classical course and was a member of the Belles Lettres society. One of her class mates tells of her brilliant work as secretary of the Society, and as a writer of choice prose. She was regarded as an elegant essayist and might, had her health permitted, have become as noted a prose writer as her sister Martha was as a poetess. Her native mental alertness and quaintness were concealed by her excessive timidity, so that only her most intimate friends were permitted to enjoy her literary charms.

"Her unselfish spirit delighted in serving others. She was the second eldest child in a family of seven and twenty two years older than her youngest sister. She did not therefore lack opportunity to serve in the days of her youth and Providence was generous in granting her like privilege in later life. Indeed she sought opportunity to help in the larger circles of the church and society. In the missionary societies, the Pastor's Aid, the Aid society of Passavant Hospital, she was a faithful, efficient worker. She retained a deep interest in her Alma Mater and by self-denial contributed in many ways to the advancement of the Kingdom of God. She loved Grace church and worked long and faithfully to help free it from debt. For years her patient hands provided the white linen and the emblems for the Lord's Supper. She possessed the traits of both the Bethany sisters. Like Martha she was 'cumbered about much serving' and did it well. Like Mary she also chose 'the better part' and found time to sit reverently at the feet of her Lord. This woman, like Dorcas, 'was full of good works and almsduds which she did,' and today this house is filled with the fragrance of her devotion to her friends and to her Savior. It is only meager justice that these words should be spoken as a 'memorial of her,' for like her Divine Lord and Master she 'went about doing good.'"

Rev. John McCabe of Delaware, Ohio, a brother in law of Miss Capps wrote the following expression of appreciation which was read by Mr. Madden.

"You who have known her loving care of her flowers at her earthly home can now think of her in the Paradise above rejoicing in the beauty and fragrance of blooms immortal as the thoughts of God they reveal to her.

"And, we fondly think, each loving thought, each kindly deed of hers here on earth has blossomed there amid those flowers unfading.

"More than once she has spoken of loneliness since her sister, Mrs. Oliver, left her last August. Now she is with her forever. Yes and with all the others she has loved and lost thru the years—Father, mother, brothers.

"We miss her gentle spirit. We mourn her loss irreparable, but are gladdened in heart as we think what Heaven means to her with its joyful reunions.

"Those who knew her best are comforted by the sure conviction that Heaven's most precious awards are hers by all the guaranties of the Saviour she loved and followed thru life.

"It was a long life, marked by earnest, patient, self-sacrificing devotion to duty. It was a life of love for family, friends ever transcending the limits of mere duty. In her church she was ever faithful to the ordinances of the sanctuary and constant in every branch of Christian service. In the charities and humane work of the general community she helped with open heart and hand. Graven deeply on her heart of hearts was the Master's call to service in His Kingdom.

"Only the Master himself knew the full significance of this quiet, undemonstrative life of Emma Capps. Surely we may apply to her the words spoken of another,

"She hath done what she could."

"Natural reserve and a beauty of humility might not reveal all her worth to a superficial notice but those who knew her prized her practical judgment, her fine sense of values, and her absolute loyalty to love and friendship.

"A woman of strong convictions, comprehensive common sense and an unusual energy of accomplishment she has added even larger esteem to the honor of her family and name.

"Such lives shed for long a tender light on the broken relationships of time and ever more and more draw our aspirations and desires to the fellowships of the immortal world, in the homes not made with hands, eternal in te Heavens.

"Thru what we call Death, we find ourselves gazing as thru a door into Heaven. There is no death. Thru Time, thru Death, thru Eternity we just go on living, and loving and serving."

Burial was in Diamond Grove cemetery, the bearers being, H. M. Capps, A. T. Capps, J. G. Capps, W. T. Capps, Percy Capps and Herbert Capps, all nephews of the deceased.

CHAPIN WOMAN'S CLUB MET RECENTLY

Mrs. G. A. Allen Hostess to Organization Wednesday Afternoon—Miss Margaret Eagan Gave Luncheon—Maurice Hadaway Celebrates Birthday—Other Chapin Notes.

Chapin, Jan. 26—The Chapin Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. G. A. Allen, Wednesday afternoon. There were sixteen members present and one guest, Miss Lois Snively of Cuba, Ill. The roll call was answered by "The National Songs," and Mrs. E. Sidles read a paper on, "The National Hymns." At this meeting it was decided to donate $5.00 to Red Cross. Light refreshments were served.

Master Maurice Hadaway celebrated his ninth birthday Friday afternoon by entertaining fifteen of his little friends at a 6 o'clock dinner. Miss Mary Black, his teacher, and Miss Marion Dennis were also guests. He received many little gifts in remembrance of the day.

Miss Margaret Eagan gave a luncheon Thursday noon. Red carnations were used as a decoration. The guests were seated at small tables and served four courses. The afternoon was spent playing Raffles. Those present were Mrs. E. Nienhueser, Miss Florence Smith, Mrs. Alfred Anderson, Miss Amy Onken, Mrs. Grover Smith, Miss Esther Antrobus, Mrs. Fred Craven, Mrs. J. L. Herbert, Miss Gladys Knopp, Mrs. H. O. Smith, Mrs. Phoebe Scott, Mrs. Gustav Onken, Mrs. E. F. Antrobus, Mrs. G. A. Allen, Mrs. P. H. Ham and Mrs. E. C. Coulson.

Miss Amy Onken left Friday night for a visit with friends in Chicago.

Harold Nergenah is giving a party tonight at his home west of Chapin.

Miss Gertrude Onken is home from I. W. C. for the week end.

MANY REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES IN KANSAS

G. O. P. Leaders Expect to Elect A Republican U. S. Senator to Succeed W. H. Thompson, Democrat—Arthur Capper, Present Governor of State, Has Announced Candidacy.

Topeka, Kans., Jan. 28.—Kansas expects to elect a Republican United States Senator to succeed W. H. Thompson, Democrat. The choice of a candidate will be made in the primaries next summer and the election will follow in November. Already the G. O. P. Generals are mustering their forces, and the majority by which Mr. Thompson was elected in the Democratic landslide in 1912 is to be reversed and a Republican will be sent to Washington to occupy a seat in the upper house of congress.

The Republicans will have a variety of aspirants from among whom to select their senatorial candidate in the primaries, and this fact is considered by the party leaders as a most favorable indication. With the primaries still more than six months distant, there are three announced candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination, and fourth whose friends expect to come out. Those who are hopeful for the success of the Republican party next fall view with complacency this contest for nomination.

Republican Leader of Prominence

The three announced candidates for Senator Thompson's toga are Arthur Capper, Topeka newspaper publisher and present governor of Kansas; Charles F. Scott, Iola newspaper publisher and for many years a representative in Congress, and Walter Stubbs, who was governor of the State in 1911-13. The fourth aspirant, whose formal announcement is expected daily, is Joseph L. Bristow, owner of the Salina Journal, former United States senator, and for many years a Republican leader of national prominence.

The first candidate to announce his intention to run for the Republican nomination for senator was Charles F. Scott. His announcement was made at a convention of Allen county Republicans held in March, 1916, to select delegates to the State convention. Mr. Scott is a native of Kansas and has a wide acquaintanceship extending to every part of the State. He has been in the newspaper business since 1882, the year following his graduation from the State University. Some twenty-five years ago he started on his public career as a member of the Kansas senate. In 1896 he was chosen a presidential elector and in 1901 he was sent to Congress. During his service of five consecutive terms in the national house of representatives he made a record for ability and reliability

Progressive Politics

Mr. Capper is credited with having entertained an ambition to go to the senate ever since he was elected to the governorship. Mr. Capper is a journalist of note with an excellent record of administrative foresight and courage to his credit since he took up the reins of government. He began life as a compositor on the paper he now owns. It took him six years to make the transition from employe to employer. His political success he owes to his progressive policies, and to the verve and directness of his methods as a propagandist and an administrator. He is far from being a militarist, and used his influence officially and personally against the Nation's entrance into the war unless absolutely forced to by Germany. Since the issue was joined, however, he has heartily supported the administration. But if elected to the senate he can be counted on as another member hostile to war as war, and eager for judicial and arbitral settlement of international disputes.

Present indications are that the Republican senatorial contest is likely to be fought out between Scott and Capper—providing Joseph L. Bristow does not get into the race. With Bristow in the running the complexion of the contest will be materially changed, for "Joe" Bristow, as he is familiarly known to every Republican in Kansas, is certain to be a factor of first importance.

No Kansan in public life is more widely known that Joseph L. Bristow. As owner and editor of several daily newspapers he has wielded much influence in his own section of the State for more than a quarter of a century. In 1895, as private secretary to Governor Morrill, he extended his acquaintanceship to party leaders throughout the State. He made a national reputation in the office of fourth assistant, which he filled from 1897 to 1905. From 1909 to 1915 he sat in the United States senate.

JOHN H. CROW KILLED BY BURLINGTON TRAIN

Colored Man Whose Home is at Bowling Green, Mo., Found Dead by Tracks—Body Badly Mangled—Accident Probably Occurred Early Sunday Night.

John Harrison Crow, colored, of Bowling Green, Mo., was killed by a Burlington train some time Sunday night. The body was discovered lying beside the tracks near the C. P. & St. L. shops Monday morning by Earl Gruber an employe of the Jacksonville Transfer company.

Mr. Gruber notified the police department and Officer Jordan went to the scene. He found the body well covered with snow which indicates that Crow met his death early Sunday evening. One of the dead man's feet was cut clear off and was found some distance from the body. The body was badly crushed and mangled.

Coroner Rose was notified of the death and had the body removed to the undertaking parlors of W. W. Gillham. He will empanel a jury and hold an inquest at 10 o'clock this morning.

The dead man was identified by a registration card which had been issued to him at Bowling Green, Mo. He was 24 years of age and had been in the employ of J. Cohen. Henry Johnson of 330 Washington street, also identified the body. It was reported that Crow's father lives in Hannibal, Mo. A telegram was sent to the Chief of Police in that city to locate him and notify him of his son's death.

Save The Extra Coal Or Gas You Use On Washday

Wash with Fels-Naptha and boiling water becomes unnecessary.

There is no need of a hot fire to keep water boiling all day when you can get even better results by using Fels-Naptha in water that's comfortable to your hands.

Washday, with the washboiler, burns a big hole in the coal bin. Try the Fels-Naptha way and you will quickly notice what a real saving it makes for you.

Chicago Specialist

In the treatment of Chronic Disease, will be at the Dunlap Hotel, Jacksonville Ill., Wednesday Jan. 30, 1917. ONE DAY ONLY. (Returns every 28 days.) Hours, 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Fourteenth Successful Year in Jacksonville. Consultation and Examination Free.

I treat successfully the cases I undertake and accept no fee from those who are incurable. That is why I continue my visits year after year, while other specialists make only a few visits and cease to return.

IS THIS THE WAY YOU FEEL?

Tired in the morning and easily excited? Are you dizzy or nervous? Pain in the head? Tongue coated? Have you Catarrh—nose stopped up? Gas on the stomach? Hands and feet cold? Palm of hands moist? Have you a dull, dragging pain or ache of the body, back or limbs? Have you Rheumatism? Have you Fistula? Piles—itching or bleeding? Have you kidney or bladder trouble, lame or weak back, pains in back or loins? Have you any blood disease—scrofula, skin eruptions, pimples, bone pains, pale complexion and losing weight?

I invite you to call and investigate the Carson System of the treatment of Chronic Diseases, which I have perfected after fifteen years of experience and study, and you will be convinced that my modern, up to date methods of curing disease are what you need.

Never before has there been a treatment giving such universal satisfaction. Every sufferer is cordially invited to call and secure full details concerning this new treatment free of charge.

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.
Come early as parlors are always crowded.

A friendly call may save you future suffering. It has made life anew to thousands who had been pronounced beyond hope.

C. W. CARSON, M. D.,

BACON IS VALUABLE FOOD FOR THE SOLDIER

President of Canadian Bank of Commerce Emphasizes Importance of Producing More Bacon Than Ever Before — Must Replace Some Articles of Food with Others.

Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto, speaking at the annual meeting of the share-holders recently, said:

"One of the most valuable foods for the soldier is bacon. He can apparently do more fighting on it than on anything else. If we fail in producing greater quantities of bacon than ever before, we shall fail in our duty to the soldiers. In this country we have been occupied in an effort to place the blame for the high price of an article, which, beyond any doubt, we ought not to consume in large quantities just now, and we have apparently forgotten that the price has gone up mainly because bacon is vital to carrying on the war and that if we do anything to lessen the efforts of the producers, the price will certainly be much higher next year than it is now. In England well-to-do people are standing in line for their food supplies and they, at least, are learning that the talk of famine is not a story to frighten children with, but a terrible possibility. The harvests have not been plentiful and the danger is as real as the menace of the submarines.

"Nothing in the end is to be gained by blaming the premier or the food controller, the provision dealer or the farmer for high prices which are not merely a result of the war but a result of war requirements so preemptory that the question of cost almost disappears. The conditions arising out of the war are at the bottom of most of our troubles. We have been told that we should save money. It is even more necessary that we should eat less ,again not so much that we need to save for ourselves but because if we do not eat less others across the sea must go hungry.

"If we have men, money and food we shall win. If we fail in any of these we may lose. Individual tests, particularly in hotels and restaurants show that very large savings can be made, wherever the effort is made to that end, but the difficulty is to make advice, or even regulations of the food controller, effective in a country which produces food largely in excess of its own requirements and where economy in the use of food is thought to be evidence of a mean and sordid disposition. It is not, however, enough that we should eat less but that we should, as far as possible, replace some article of food, especially white bread and bacon with others."

JACKSONVILLE MAN WOULD RATHER FIGHT THAN WORK

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and could not eat and just hated for anyone to say work to me. I would rather fight. Since taking a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy I actually want to work, and talk about eat. I am the last one to leave the table now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR, DOUBLE ITS BEAUTY

Try This! Hair Gets Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful At Once.

Immediate?—yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents.—Adv.

BREAKS A COLD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

"Pape's Cold Compound" Ends Grippe Misery—Don't Stay Stuffed-up!

You can end grippe and break up a severe cold either in head, chest, body or limbs, by taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.—Adv.

POTATO CROP THE LARGEST

Prices Ruling Higher than in Previous Years.

The potato marketing situation at this moment appears to be serious according to a statement just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The total production in 1917 is estimated to have been 442,536,000 bushels, or the largest crop ever produced in the United States. Notwithstanding this fact, prices from the time of digging to the present have ruled higher than in any previous year of which we have record with the exception of last year when the crop was abnormally short.

The Department of Agriculture has been able to compute the movement of the present crop with more accuracy than has ever been possible before and from all the information available it appears that not more than one-third of the marketable surplus of the crop of 1917 has been moved up to December 31. In other words, there remained to be moved upon January 1 ,two cars of the crop of 1917 for every car marketed up to that time. The movement since January 1 has not been noticeably accelerated. The present reserve stocks are so widely distributed that the transporation problems do not appear to be acute. Generally speaking, more potatoes could be moved if offered for shipment.

The situation demands enlightened, patriotic and vigorous action on the part of all concerned in the movement of this crop. Unless large dealers promptly move the stocks on hand in order to speed up distribution and bring the large reserve still on the farms into the channels of trade, heavy wastage of the crop appears certain to result later in the season. It is believed that dealers will in the end find it wiser to move present holdings without profit or even at some loss rather than to risk destructive wastage later in the season. At the same time, present retail prices must be somewhat reduced if potato consumption is to be stimulated as it should be.

Prices at point of production have generally declined since digging began and many dealers are reputed to hold large stocks purchased at prices higher than those now prevailing. This may account in some measure for the present slow rate of movement out of some of the heaviest producing areas and for the abnormally wide difference between present wholesale prices to the grower and retail prices to the consumer.

Under existing and prospective conditions no material quantity of potatoes can be exported or converted into non-perishable products this season. The crop can not be carried over. It must be consumed or wasted. The food situation thruout the world demands that it be consumed effectively to relieve the existing strain on the supply of cereals. It is the one great food resource of the world upon which there is now danger of a heavy loss and the department is of the opinion that the situation demands that farmers sell freely; that the large dealers move their stocks rapidly; and that the retailer content himself with the smallest possible margin of profit, realizing that he is now the most important factor in speeding up potato consumption.

HENRY RICKS WRITES MR. AND MRS. PIRES

Mr. and Mrs. John Pires Have Received the Following Letter from Henry Ricks, Who is "Somewhere in France."

Somewhere in France, Jan. 1, 1918.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Pires:

I received your most welcome gift and I want to extend my thanks and appreciation. It certainly made me feel fine to know that I had friends who would be thinking of me on Christmas day, and it shows how kind and thoughtful some people are.

I am away over here but at present am not in a very dangerous position, altho I have been several times, and all thru my experiences I have ever thought of the people back in Jacksonville and many times I become dissatisfied. But I don't allow this to overpower me but always plan for a brighter future. Again I want to thank you and wish every one of you a happy new year and many of them.

Yours sincerely,
Henry A. Ricks.

MOUND WOMAN'S CLUB ORGANIZATION TOLD

Interesting Facts are Taken From Current Issue of The Prairie Farmer.

The current issue of The Prairie Farmer contains an interesting story of the organization and history of the Mound Woman's Club. Some of the facts are familiar to local people but the article has special interest because it represents the view of an "outsider" on one of the useful woman's organizations of this county.

Running about three miles southwest of Jacksonville, Ill., is a range of hills commonly referred to in Morgan county as "The Mound." It is from them that a very interesting and uesful women's organization gets its name. Until three years ago most of the women in this neighborhood, which is just adjacent to Jacksonville and particularly subject to the influences of city life, had the majority of their friends in town and were relatively unacquainted with their next door neighbors.

Taking note of this fact and its incongruity, one of these women, Mrs. W. S. Jones, called a group of the Mound neighborhood women together and organized the Mound Women's Country Club. Then for a time she withdrew entirely from the activities of the club, for she did not wish it to be understood that she was seeking personal ends thru it and because she wanted to see the club work out its own development.

The club has accomplished what its organizer had hoped it would—and more. About a year after its organization a roll call was had at one of the monthly meetings in which each member responded by telling what the Mound Women's Country Club had meant to her. The gist of their responses was that the club had shown them what good neighbors they had in the country.

Tho the fundamental purpose of the club has been to promote the social life of the community, it has also been worth while from an educational viewpoint and from the opportunity it has given the women to take a more active part in neighborhood affairs. Monthly meetings are held, at which the members read papers on and discuss questions of special interest to them. These meetings take place in the afternoon at the homes of the members. Refreshments are served but are limited to three articles. This is done to prohibit possible rivalry in the matter of refreshments and to emphasize the purposes of the organization, which are social and cultural and not epicurean.

Once a year an open meeting is held to which each member is privileged to bring five guests. For these meetings an outside speaker is obtained. Supt. Francis G. Blair spoke at the open meeting in 1915. Last year Frank Mann was the speaker, and well do the women—and their husbands—remember the occasion. No one had told Mr. Mann how long he should speak and, having a nearly inexhaustible subject and a keenly interested audience, he spoke for three hours, till he himself got hungry. It was after six o'clock when he finished, so late that the women had to leave without having their refreshments in order to get tardy suppers for the men folks.

The membership list of the Mound Women's Country Club is limited to 50, all of whom must live in a certain designated territory, which is eight miles square. The memberships fee is one dollar a year. A tenth of all the funds collected by the club is devoted to charity in just what manner being decided by vote of the members. In this and in other ways the Mound Women's Country Club is working along lines not commonly followed by women's organizations. Nevertheless it is accomplishing a great deal for a neighborhood too close to a city to have a good social life of its own without the club.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. John W. Cleary, president; Mrs. R. G. Vasey, vice-president; Mrs. A. H. Doleer, secretary, and Miss May Spaulding, treasurer.

"CASCARETS" FOR A COLD, BAD BREATH OR SICK HEADACHE

Best for Liver and Bowels, for Biliousness, Sour Stomach and Constipation

Get a 10 cent box now.

Furred tongue, bad cold, indigestion, sallow skin and miserable headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10 cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.—Adv.

WHEAT SAVERS' LEAGUE
(By U. S. Food Administration)

Will you not put your name down as a member of the national Wheat Savers' League? There is no card to sign and there are no dues to pay. But membership in the league will be an honor today and a pride in years to come.

Every member has an agreement with himself, or it may be with some member of his family that he will save a bushel of wheat between now and next summer. He will do this by the faithful observance of the food administration's wheatless days and wheatless meals, and by such other saving of wheat as his own ingenuity will invent.

Membership in the league will be graded according to the ingenuity the member uses in finding new ways of saving wheat. For this reason women are desired as members on account of their ability to make appetizing menus.

The league is an auxiliary of the army of the United States and of the armies of the Allies. The victory of these armies is partly dependent on the service and devotion of the members of the Wheat Saver's League.

The purpose of the league lies in the fact that the United States must send to the European Allies 90,000,000 bushels of wheat above our normal export during the present season. There is only one place for the wheat to come from and that is the consumers in the United States. In order that this amount may be shipped, every citizen of the country must save from one-quarter to one-third of his normal consumption of wheat.

There will be no meetings of the Wheat Savers' League. No officers' will be elected. You will not even have to report the results of your savings. All the duties are in your hands to order and to execute. You will not wear a button or hang out a flag or display a placard. You may talk about your membership or you may make it a secret society as you wish. But you will be glad you have joined for membership will make you carry yourself better and will make you happier.

Join the Wheat Savers' League today. Save a bushel of wheat and help win the war.

LITTLE THRIFTERS.

Make our heatless days hot for the kaiser—Buy War Savings stamps.

American boys are dying for their country. Surely you can save for it.

There is just one way to get out of this war; that is to win it. Every time you invest in a thrift stamp you are hastening peace.

No one ever got really rich by merely saving money. You must invest it. Let your money commence to work for you as soon as you get the price of a War Savings Stamp.

Money out at interest takes no holidays on account of coal shortage. War Savings stamps earn interest for you Sundays and holidays.

A thrift card is your pocket beats half a dozen flags on the lapel of your coat.

War savers are life savers. Buy War Savings Stamps.

Cincinnati Man Discovers Drug That Loosens Corns So They Lift Out

Local druggists are having a tremendous call for freezone, the drug which is said to shrivel a corn, root and all, without any pain .

A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness at once, and shortly the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out with the fingers.

This new drug is being dispensed at small cost in quarter ounce bottles, which is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn from one's feet. It is a sticky substance which dries at once, and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin. There is no excuse for anyone inviting death by infection or lockjaw from cutting their corns now.—Adv.

What's the Difference?

The only difference that shows on the outside is the trade-mark, but that's enough for any wise car-owner.

He knows that it stands for a big difference inside, that it is the mark of Willard Threaded Rubber Insulation, the latest and the greatest improvement in battery construction.

And this means a Still Better Willard Battery, more durable insulation, a more economical battery to own, and unit for unit of electricity, more for his money.

Come in and let us explain more fully the difference between Threaded Rubber Insulation and other kinds. It will pay you.

THE ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

Players Whose Averages Place Them In the Front Ranks.

New York. — Six of the eight clubs composing the American League are represented on the All-league team consisting of players who made the best showing in their respective positions, according to the official averages of the junior major circuit. The Chicago White Sox, winners of the World championship and the league pennant, lead with three; Cleveland is second with two and Boston, Detroit, St. Louis and Philadelphia secure one place each.

The All-American League combination is formed of players whose season batting and fielding averages, when combined and re-averaged, place them in the fore ranks in their regular playing position. The rule requires that a playing member of the team must have taken part in at least fifty games. The one exception is that of the pitcher who is not expected to figure in close to one-third of the scheduled play of the year. In addition to effective work at bat and in the field the pitcher must have demonstrated his ability to hold opponents to a low margin of runs and hits when in the box.

Ruth of Boston, comes closer to meeting these qualifications than any of the other leading twirlers of the league. On the basis of opponents' earned runs per game he is ninth on the list, with an average of 2.02. He played in 41 games and pitched a total of 326 innings. Cicotte of Chicago has the best average of the American League boxmen with 1.53 runs per game but his batting and fielding records fall far below those of Ruth. Cicotte batted .179 to Ruth's .325 and fielded 956 to his rival's .984. Both pitchers figured in about the same number of contests. Other boxmen, including Mays, Plank, S. Coviaeski, Scott, Faber and E. Russell had a better run per game average but failed to show the all-round playing strength of Ruth.

The records show that the American League posseses catchers who are very near matched in all-round playing skill. Schang, of the Philadelphia Athletes is first with a grand average of .620. Nunamaker, of New York, is but two points behind the Mackmen and Walters New York; Severoid, St. Louis; and Thomas of Boston are right at the heels of the leading pair. Schang batted .285 and fielded .956. Nunamaker fielded twenty points better but his hitting average was 24 points lower.

Sisler of St Louis, is an easy winner of the first base position with a grand average of .669 twenty points better than his nearest competitor, Gainor, of Boston. McInnis, of Philadelphia, is but one point below Gainer and Harris, of Cleveland, three points behind the former Athletic star, now a member of the Boston Red Sox. Sisler leads the quartet in batting, by a margin of close to fifty points, and is fourth in fielding but the difference in this department of play is so slight as to have little effect on his grand average

The place at second base goes to Eddie Collins, of Chicago, who is easily the best in all-round offensive and defensive ability. His nearest rival is Morgan of Washington, who is sixteen points below Collins in standing. Godeen of New York, is third. Collins is the leader of the trio in batting and second in fielding. Gedeon having the best figures for work around the midway sack.

But one point separates Weaver, of Chicago, and Baker, of New York in the struggle for the position at third base. Both fielded at a .949 clip but Weaver's season average with the bat was .284 to Baker's .282. Gardner, of Boston was third his grand average being fifteen points below that of Weaver. In neither batting nor fielding did he rise to the heights reached by the two that precede him in standing.

Chapman, of Cleveland, is the premier shortstop, his combined average being fourteen points better than of Bush, of Detroit. Scott, of Boston, and McBride, of Washington lead Chapman in fielding but the latter's batting mark of .302 gives him a decided advantage over all of his competitors for the place.

The All-American League outfield is a star combination being composed of Cobb Detroit; Speaker, Cleveland and Felsch, Chicago. Cobb is high man among the first three owing to his heavy batting averages of .383. Speaker, Felsch and Jackson of Chicago all outrank Cobb in fielding but the latter's ability with the hickory gives him a grand average of .678, thirteen points better than Speaker. The latter outhit Felsch but was in turn outfielded by the third player of the trio. Jackson loses third position by the narrow margin of four points in grand average while Veach, Detroit and Lewis, Boston tied at .637.

The personnal of the team with the season batting, fielding and grand averages is as follows:

ALL-AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM FOR 1917.

COUNTERACTS UPWARD PRICE TENDENCY

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Shrinkage of industrial and shipping demand here as a result of traffic congestion counteracted an upward tendency today in corn. The market closed steady at the same as Saturday's finish with March $1.25⅝@⅞. Oats gained ⅜@1⅛¢. The outcome in provisions ranged from 10¢ decline to an advance of 5¢.
Unfavorable weather fo rthe crop movement from the country made corn prices harden a little at the outset but adverse conditions having materially diminished, efficiency of switching yards here. Inquiry from large consumers was somewhat halted.
Urgent export demand for shipment by way of the gulf did much to lift oats, as did meagerness of arrivals.
Provisions averaged slightly higher owing to hog receipts were less plentiful than had been expected.

SOME LINES TO THE KAISER

The following verses addressed to Kaiser Wilhelm II were written by S. C. Ransom, who was formerly employed at the School for the Deaf in this city. Mr. Ransom, who is now living at 801 I street, N. W., Washington, is holding a government position. The verses were sent to a Jacksonville friend in a letter:

Ach! Kaiser Wilhelm, you shall long rue the day,
When you sent forth your armies in battle array,
To conquer your neighbors, just over the way.
You are mad, Kaiser Wilhelm, to think that you are
In league with the Lord to carry on war.
And rashly decide the world's peace to mar.

First, Belgium felt the twist in your brain;
You battered her churches, and trampled her grain,
And made slaves of her people, on your way to the Seine,
Her women were ravished, and her children were killed;
Her soil is encrimsoned with blood you have killed;
And her fields are all dotted with graves you have filled.

Then France, in her turn, felt the weight of your sword,
As forward you drove, with your Hungarian horde;
Your poison-gas spread, and your liquid-flame roared;
But your Boches were stopped at the Hindenburg trench,
By the foes whom you fear, the light-hearted French,
Whose courage ne'er fails, and whose faces ne'er blench.

Your drive into Italy is soon destined to fail,
For the shells and the bullets are falling like hail,
And the morale of your soldiers is beginning to quail.
Your commerce is ruined, your factories shut down;
You have lost all your claim to martial renown,
And soon, very soon, you will lose your own crown.

Columbia, Gem of the Ocean, whose praises poets have sung,
Who early adopted your people, whose in friendship she wrung,
Now feels the sting of a viper, and hears your slanderous tongue.
But her soldiers, the best and the bravest, ten millions can carry a gun,
Will avenge the insults you offer, with swords that flash in the sun,
And your name, most abhorrent to nations, is that of a faithless Hun.

Of Kultur you boast, and Schrecklichkeit preach;
To your officers, soldiers, and civilians you teach
A campaign of horror, too frightful for speech.
Your Gott you invoke, with arrogant words,
To aid you to conquer the world with your swords,
And enslave it forever to all your war lords.

Your ambition is boundless, and your conscience is seared;
For battle and bloodshed your children are reared;
And all of your efforts towards conquest are steered.
But a reckoning is coming you long will remember,
And like Caesar, you'll think of the "Ides of November."
While the nations you strive in vain to dismember.

Have banded together, and risen in wrath;
Bold Democracy stands like a rock in your path,
And the fate of Napoleon is your aftermath.
So Kaiser, dread Kaiser, you will soon be interned,
Your U-Boats be sunk and your cruisers be burned,
And you the sad lesson in full, will have learned.

That, while ambition is worthy, in any good cause,
As a ruler, you must show respect for the laws,
Or the Black Eagle soon will be shorn of his claws.
And so, Kaiser Wilhelm, your only salvation,
And the most pressing need for the great German nation,
Is an early, complete, and full abdication.

For Mittel-Europa is but a vain vision;
The world speaks your name with hate and derision,
And soon you must make your final decision;
That blood shall stop flowing and destruction shall end,
And over the war-zone our Savior shall send
Peace on earth, and Good-will to all men.

FORMER RESIDENT DIED IN CALIFORNIA

Mrs. Clendennon Long Resident Here Dead Following Long Illness.

Word has been received in the city of the recent death of Mrs. L. K. Clendennon of Los Angeles, Cal. Her maiden name was Woodman and she was born in Pennsylvania nearly ninety years ago. Deceased was first married to Joseph C. Carver. The family removed to this city about 1862 and lived here for a time in the house now occupied by Dr. Edward Bowe. She was a sister of William C. Woodman, for a long time one of Jacksonville's first dry goods merchants, who had a store in the room now occupied by Obermeyer & Son.

Later he disposed of his business here and moved to Wichita, Kans., where he became a prominent capitalist dying a number of years ago. Another brother was Edward Woodman well beloved by everyone who knew him. He was a musician and leader of a band for a time. He married Mrs. Oakes, mother of Henry and Charles Oakes of Bluffs, and they later lived in the same house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Carver. Deceased also had two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Carver of Bluffs, and Mrs. William Hahn of Philadelphia. All of these died many years ago. One son, Edward Carver, died many years ago. Deceased is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ella Woodman of Santa Monica, Cal.; Mrs. Linda Hixon of southern California, and Mrs. Otis Davidson of Wichita, Kans. Mrs. Hixon is the mother of two promising sons, one of them in the service of the U. S., and Mrs. Davidson is the mother of a son and a daughter.

Mr. Carver was for years employed as salesman in Woodman's dry goods store and later in the store of Charles and Edward Hayden, then in the store of Charles Hayden and after the death of the latter, he and S. P. Cheney conducted a grocery store on West State street for a number of years. He stood high in business circles and was a man of honor and integrity and popular with everyone. He was a member of the Congregational church and was ever devoted to his family and friends. The death of Mr. Carver occurred in March, 1881, and six years later his widow was united in marriage with R. K. Clendennon of this city, who survives here. Shortly after this event they removed to Los Angeles, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Clendennon and her first husband were of Quaker parentage and in their home life addressed each other as "thee" and "thou." She was a member of the Congregational church of this city and a lady of rare personal qualities. She was of a sweet and lovely disposition, kind and generous toward everyone, always ready to sacrifice self for the good of others. Her departure from Jacksonville was deplored by many persons. A nephew, William Woodman, son of Edward Woodman had made his home with her for a number of years. Deceased was in failing health for a number of years and had received the most devoted attention from her dutiful husband, who now has the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends. Mr. Clendennon was for a number of years a leading photographer of this city and was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him for his many noble traits of character.

DR. JOHN R. SUTHERLAND PASTOR FIRST CHURCH.

The Journal noted briefly the passing of Dr. J. R. Sutherland, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, some days ago. He was called Oct. 3, 1880 to the church here, and resigned June 24, 1884. It was during his pastorate that the building was burned, Sept. 6, 1883.

"The Continent" of Jan. 24, inst., had the following under "Ministerial Obituary."

Dr. John R. Sutherland, associate secretary of the Board of Sustenation and Ministerial Relief, died at his home in Philadelphia after an illness of several months, Jan. 10, 1918, aged 72. He was born at Kirk Hill, Ontario, studied at Knox College, Toronto and in Auburn and McCormick Seminaries and was ordained by Indianapolis Presbytery in 1874. His pastoral charges were in Indianapolis, Grand Haven, Mich., Jacksonville and Rockford, Ill.; Pittsburgh and Burlington, Iowa. In the fall of 1906 Dr. Sutherland was chosen secretary of the Assembly's committee of the ministerial sustentation fund. He had been very active in establishing the fund and had been a member of the committee of the Assembly that formulated the plan. He originated the plan and submitted it to the synod of Iowa, by which it was adopted. Subsequently it was adopted by the Assembly with a few changes. Dr. Sutherland raised the first $5,000 for the fund from among his own friends, and this was the capital the fund had when it started. For two years the office of the fund, with Dr. Sutherland as secretary, was in New York. The fund was incorporated in 1909 and in 1912 combined with the Board of Relief. Dr. Sutherland was chosen associate secretary. He is survived by a widow and three daughters.

In another column was this reference:

At Sutherland Funeral—Impressive funeral services for Dr. John R. Sutherland, late associate secretary of the Board of Sustentation and Ministerial Relief, held in private rooms on Chestnut street, were in charge of Rev. William Boyd of Lansdowne, pastor of Sutherland's family. Addresses were made by Doctors D. S. Kennedy, W. H. Roberts, W. S. Holt and William Boyd. Prayer was offered by Dr. W. W. Heberton, treasurer of the board.

There was also the folowing editorial:

Idea Convinced All Churches.

Dr. John R. Sutherland, associate secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Relief and Sustentation, has left a self-built monument among American churches which makes his memory secure. His lifework illustrates how a man concentrating on a big idea in a comparatively restricted area frequently does a much vaster thing than he dreams of. The vine he plants in his own garden runs over the wall and takes root in other gardens in every direction. Thus the service which Dr. Sutherland thought himself to be rendering only to his immediate fellows in the Presbyterian clergy had already within his own time come to bless the ministers of practically all Protestant denominations. His conviction that ministers incurring disability or reaching ol age should have the blessing of an honorary service pension awaiting them, he successfully urged on his own church in the first place, and then without urging the demonstrated values of the system drew other denomingation one after another to adopt the same ideal. The plan is not in complete operation yet anywhere, but it has gone so far that nobody any longer seriously questions the practicability of it or its desirability. And the original champion of the policy closed his eyes on this world with the satisfaction of knowing that his life had been lived to an accomplishment that has made other men happier. Who could desire more?

Those who knew Dr. Sutherland here heard of his calling away with regret and their sympathies will go out to his widow and daughters.

—Ensley Moore.

MRS. STORRS VERY ILL.

A few weeks since the Journal made mention of a stroke of paralysis suffered by Mrs. Storrs, wife of Prof. H. E. Storrs, formerly of Illinois college and now of Los Angeles, Cal. Word has been received of a second stroke which took place a few days ago and has completely prostrated the lady.

A. L. Kimber of Chicago was in the city Monday attending to business matters.

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!
It Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting
Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and usually the pain is gone!
Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients.
They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).
30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

Try this recipe for Crullers and Doughnuts—you can help save the Nation's fats when you use Mazola for deep frying
MAZOLA

Mazola is a vegetable oil—pressed from corn.
It is the ideal medium for deep frying, sautéing, or shortening, because it is not only economical—it gives such splendid quality.

Crullers and Doughnuts

2½ cups bread flour	2 eggs
1 cup sugar	½ teaspoon salt and ginger
1 cup sour milk	½ teaspoon nutmeg and cinnamon
2 tablespoons Mazola	½ to ¾ teaspoon baking soda

Sift all dry ingredients except soda 3 times. Beat eggs, add milk, soda and Mazola, pour on dry ingredients. Mix well, turn on floured board, roll or pat in ¾ inch sheet and let stand a few minutes to rise. Cut and fry in hot Mazola.

Get Mazola from your grocer in pint, quart, half-gallon or gallon tins. And ask for the free Mazola Book of Recipes, or write us direct.

Your money refunded if Mazola does not give entire satisfaction.

WILL GATHER SEED CORN FACTS IN COUNTY

Local Committee Asked to Co-Operate With State Seed Corn Administrator — Shortage is 400,000 Bushels.

The state situation with reference to seed corn is such that the state council of defense determined upon an active campaign for the conservation of good seed corn within the state and in order to procure an equitable distribution of seed where the need is great. To accomplish this purpose the state council selected W. G. Eckhardt of DeKalb county as the state seed corn administrator. Mr. Eckhardt has been for the past 5½ years the county adviser in DeKalb county and has made a splendid record there. He is accounted a pioneer in county agriculture work in this state and in his present position has handled a number of difficult seed corn situations with success. He seems a fortunate choice for head of the seed corn administration not only because of his qualifications but also because he is widely known thruout the state and will have the general confidence of the farmers.

F. E. Drury is the Morgan county chairman of the food and fuel conservation committee and as chairman he recently received a letter from Mr. Eckhardt in which the seed corn situation is outlined and the earnest support of the fuel and food conservation committee is asked.

Local Committee Met

In order to discuss the seed corn situation Mr. Drury recently called together members of his committee and they held a conference at the Ayers National bank. Those present in addition to the chairmen were Charles A. Rowe, J. W. Arnold, C. S. Black and Barr Brown. The statement from Mr. Eckhardt was presented, together with some literature issued by the state council, and it was decided that for the present the local committee can do no better work than to aid in this seed corn proposition. It was the opinion of all present that locally the principal thing is to get accurate information from farmers as to whether or not they have tested seed corn sufficient for their own needs and furthermore if they have any surplus. It seems quite probable that there is enough good seed corn in Morgan county to take care of local needs but the question is more than one of county limits and if there is any surplus here the fact should be known so that the corn can be sent elsewhere. The condition in the northern part of the state is much worse than in this section with reference to seed corn and the state council of defense believes that there is a seed corn shortage in the state of at least 400,000 bushels. Unless some quantities of corn suitable for seed now unknown can be secured.

Will Gather Facts

As a result of the conference of the local committee it was decided to ask M. F. Dunlap as representative of the national food administration to use the precinct organization at his command for securing the seed corn information. When the facts have been made known in reports to Mr. Dunlap they will be transmitted to the fuel and food conservation committee which will take steps to so summarize the facts that they may be of aid to the state seed corn administrator. The farmers who have corn they consider suitable for seed are urged to notify Mr. Drury or some other member of the committee, indicate the amount and if possible provide samples for testing. The farmers who do not have seed and who are not able to secure seed are also urged to make known this fact to the committee. The main point now is for farmers to take immediate steps to protect themselves in this important matter, and if the securing of seed corn begins now the whole problem will be much simpler than if farmers wait a month or six weeks to begin this important work.

The letter from Mr. Eckhardt follows.

Chicago, Jan. 25, 1918.

Mr. Frank Drury,
Jacksonville, Ill.

Dear Sir:

With our country at war and straining every effort to increase food production, Illinois is confronted with the greatest seed corn shortage in history. The situation is extremely serious and it is up to you and me to do everything possible to insure sufficient seed for the State by the 10th of May.

The State Council of Defense, realizing the situation has created a seed corn administration to meet the emergency, but without the co-operation of every man and agency in Illinois our work would be of very little help.

In a short time I shall confer with you in detail as to the situation in your County, but in the meantime you can render valuable services by giving careful consideration to the following features of this work:

1(1 Arouse your County to the seriousness of this situation and develop sufficient supply of seed for local use, and ascertain as accurately as possible the shortage, or excess. This work must be done at once and with all possible dispatch and efficiency, and in doing it you will be rendering your County a service of first importance, and in helping yourself you will be helping the State.

(2) We will look to you entirely to develop and care for the needs within your County and to create an excess of seed if possible for other Counties where a shortage exists.

(3) The advisory committee of the seed corn administration, in order to insure an equitable distribution of seed corn within the state contemplate buying up a sufficient supply to meet this need and will fix reasonable prices.

4) We hope to develop every bushel of seed locally before going outside a community. Suppose ten of us go to the same man for seed: The result will be a boosting of prices of seed corn to a level prohibitive to the farmer.

The chairman of the Food, Fuel and Conservation committee is the county head and unit through which this work is to be done. If for any reason you can't act, try to decide upon some one in your county to do this work. It requires a man of great integrity who will devote his full time until the work is done.

I beg of you, your hearty co-operation. I realize the pitfalls of this task and so do you. If we work and council together, we can do a great service for Illinois during the next 100 days.

Very truly yours,
Wm. G. Eckhardt,
Seed Corn Administrator
for Illinois

WILL STUDY MAKING OF SURGIAL DRESSINGS

Mrs Alworth of Mt. Sterling will come to the Red Cross shop tomorrow to take a course in the making of surgical dressings. Mrs. Alworth will take the complete mourse and upon her return will begin the instruction of the Red Cross chapter in Prown county in this work. Miss Carter wishes to announce that any others who wish to take the course may do so by coming to the Red ross shop Wednesday.

The management also wishes to impress upon Red Cross workers the necessity of constant work. Since the holidays many of the workers have not again taken up to work they were doing before Christmas. The Red Cross management has received a quantity of material and there is yet much work to be done before Morgan county's quota is achieved.

The year 1913 showed the largest list of entries for the open golf championship in the history of the United States Golf Association. That year 165 entries were received as against eleven in 1895, the first year the open was held.

LEONARD YOUNG DIED SUNDAY AT CAMP KELLY

Resident of County Succumbs to Pneumonia at Military Camp—Body Will Be Brought Back for Burial.

Relatives received word yesterday of the death of Leonard Young which occurred at Camp Kelly, San Antonio, Texas, Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young, parents of the young man were with him when the end came and will bring the body here for burial.

Leonard Young was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young and was born and reared in this county. The family now reside on a farm north of Orleans. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Roy who resides south of Jacksonville, and Harold, who is at the Great Lakes Naval Station, Chicago, and Mrs. May Thompson of Arcadia.

Deceased enlisted some months ago and was assigned to the aviation scetion of the army. Several days ago he was seized with an attack of measles. Pneumonia soon developed and finally caused death.

He was 23 years of age and was a young man who was highly regarded by all who knew him. The sympathy of all will go out to the family in their bereavement. It is expected that the remains will arrive here Wednesday. The time of the funeral will be announced later.

RECEIVED CATTLE FROM OMAHA, NEBRASKA

George and Alfred Musch, received Sunday morning, a car load of high grade white face steers and a number of Short Horn heifers, from Bowles' livestock yards, the sale being made by Harry Renchler, a close friends of these young men's father, J. C. Musch.

This makes two car loads of cattle, besides a number of cars of hogs. One load of these cattle are of their own raising, and have been on feed since early last fall and will be ready for early summer market, while the others will be ready by fall.

Musch Bros., no doubt, will make a sucess in raising and feeding stock. They have had experience with their father, but for a number of years he has not been able to be with them on account of being an invalid. They have taken up this work in addition to their farming.

The farm on which they reside has been known to every one as a stock farm and their father has been a stock farmer for over thirty years. The farm is located in a fine part of the county, stock being raised and fed by their grandfather's father. At present Musch Bros. are the only feeders in that vicinity.

RED CROSS GERM PLOT PROVES CANARD.

Saturday a Springfield paper published a story with a scare head on its front page of the discovery of an alleged German plot to infect surgical dressings and bandages being made by the Springfield chapter of the Red Cross with deadly germs.

The story was based on the analysis of a piece of paper picked up on the floor of a Red Cross work room some time ago. This scrap of paper had German printing on it. The analysis was made by Dr. Walter B. Bain, patholigist at St. John's hospital.

It was said that a guinea pig died when inoculated with cultures obtained from the scrap of paper. However, a meeting of medical experts was held Sunday evening and it was brought out that almost any piece of paper might become infected from handling by several persons so that it would produce cultures that would cause death.

The report created a great commotion for a short time in Springfield. However, after a consultation with leading authorities the management of the Sangamon county Red Cross society issued a statement refuting the story in its entirety.

DR. WATSON GAILEY IN U. S. MEDICAL SERVICE

The Bloomington Bulletin in a recent issue makes mention of the fact that Dr. Watson Gailey, one of the city's most prominent physicians, has received orders to report for duty in the medical reserve corps of the army thru Surgeon General Gorgas as Washington Feb. 5. Dr. Gailey will therefore leave soon for the national capital. He was commissioned as a first lieutenant in the medical reserve corps of the regular army last August. Dr. Gailey, who is well known in this city, is a brother of Eugene Gailey of this city and of the late Dr. Byron S. Gailey. For a time he practiced with his brother here before going to Bloomington. Mrs. Gailey before her marriage was Miss Louise Huffaker. The Bulletin, refering to Dr. Gailey's going said:

Dr. Gailey's leave taking will be noted with regret by all in this section of the state, though they will rejoice to know that our boys in khaki are so well taken care of. Dr. Gailey has lived in the city just ten years, settling here after his graduation from the medical college of the University of Illinois, at Chicago. He has been very successful in the practice of his profession, and as an oculist and aurist, has attained a wide reputation.

Mrs. Gailey and their child, Janet, will remain in Bloomington, until Lieut. Gailey is settled in Washington.

Lieut. Gailey stated last night that he understood that he was to be placed at work which would take him on visits to all the various cantonments and military posts.

TO INCREASE NUMBER OF NAVAL AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Tillman, chairman of the senate naval committee today introuced a bill to increase the number of naval aviators from 350 to 10,000 and raise the enlisted personnel of the navy to 180,000. The president would be authorized to appoint temporary officers not higher than the rank of lieutenant commander in the navy and major in the marine corps.

WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE PREPARES FOR CAMPAIGN

Will Conduct Intensive Campaign Thruout the County—Plans Made at Meeting Held Monday Afternoon.

Morgan County War Savings Committee met Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Ayers Bank building.

There were present: Carl H. Weber, county chairman; Judge Wm. E. Thomson, chairman speakers committee; L. B. Turner, chairman lodge committee; H. H. Vasconcellos, chairman schools and colleges; J. H. Dial, chairman publicity committee; R. I. Dunlap, vice chairman; L. T. Potter, chairman agricultural committee; Miss Helen Doying, publicity chairman for woman's committee; Miss Anna Bronson, precinct chairman for women's committee.

The committee outlined plans for an intensive campaign thruout the county. The campaign will be launched in force during the week of Feb. 3 to 9th which has been designated National Thirt week. The dates of the various committees were outlined and plans will be formulated for three months at a time.

A strong organization will be formed in each precinct and the campaign will be largely one of patriotism and thrift education.

The committee hopes to make Morgan county one of the banner counties of the state and to go "over the top" as in other war campaigns.

Reports from all sources foretell the popularity of the War Savings Stamps and while the quota of the county has been set at $780,000 it is confidently believed that the amount will be exceeded.

The committee will meet next Monday at the same place and hour to perfect the precinct organization.

LITERBERRY MISSION CIRCLE MET FRIDAY

Mrs. J. A. Liter Hostess at Interesting Meeting—Red Cross Auxiliary to Serve Lunch at Ratliff Sale Feb. 1—Other News Notes.

The Mission Circle of the Baptist church met in regular session on Friday afternoon at Orchard Place, with Mrs. J. A. Liter. The following program was rendered:

Scripture reading, Galatians, 6th chapter, by Mrs. C. A. Beavers.

Prayer by Mrs. McCarty.

An hour and a half was devoted to the study of the year's text book, and reading was by different members. The chapter read was the 4th, the subject, "The Ten Tyings," meaning the Ten Commandments.

Mrs. C. A. Beavers gave us thirteen questions on the reading, which were answered fairly well.

Ten members were present and a good offering was taken.

Dainty refreshments were served at the proper time by the hostess. We were dismissed by repeating Psalms 2-8.

The old books, of last year will be taken to the church and placed in the care of a librarian. The books will be numbered and any one desiring to read them, can get them from the librarian who will have full control of them.

They are a good set of books and well worth anyone's time to read them.

The latest—Billy Dodsworth saw a pair of meadow larks last Monday morning, one was carrying sticks and the other was building the nest.

We had a birthday at Sunshine Cottage on the 17th and Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Crum remembered it and sent us a substantial present.

The members of the Red Cross of the Literberry branch are preparing a lunch to be served at the Ratliff sale on the first day of February.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Liter of Bluegrass Corner entertained Rev. S. C. Smith Sunday.

A surgical glove has been invented which will enable a man who has lost the use of the tendons in the back of his hand to be able to write just as well as if he had those tendons there.

MILITIA COMPANY STILL IN DOUBT

Another Meeting Called for Thursday Night—Uniform Question is Now Out of the Way.

At the meeting held at Armory hall Monday night for the further consideration of organizing a local military company only about twenty five men were present. Major E. C. Vickery again made a statement with reference to the wishes of the state with regard to the organization of the company here. He made it clear that sixty five men are necessary for the formation of a company. The city of Lincoln has furnished two companies and some other cities have done equally well.

If Jacksonville does not wish to be represented in the state militia all that is necessary is to so notify Lieut. Gov. Oglesby and the adjutant general. However, Major Vickery and a number of others are very much in earnest in believing that Jacksonville should have such a company and that to fail now would be a sad commentary upon local patriotism. There seems to be a general feeling that many of those who first indicated their willingness to join a company have since changed their minds because they did not feel in position to provide their own uniforms and to bear the expense of renting the armory. It was made clear last night that the question of expense need not worry the men and uniforms will be provided for those who do not feel disposed to purchase their own.

One well known citizen telephoned Major Vickery that he would contribute enough to pay for the uniforming of six men and would be glad to subscribe a monthly sum for expenses if that were necessary. Other men have signified a willingness to help with the uniform fund, and so the statement was made last night that the question of uniforms or expense need keep no one out of the organization. It was determined to hold another meeting Thursday night of this week at the armory and it is hoped that at least sixty five men will be present, ready to sign up as members of the militia company. As previously stated, the question of uniform need keep no one from membership in the company or from attending Thursday night. Major Vickery was unwilling to postpone the meeting until Monday night because he has now delayed answering the lieutenant governor as long as he thinks he can well do.

JOHN A. SCHMALZ DIES IN ST. LOUIS

Former Merchant Dies Following a Stroke of Paralysis—Brother of George A. Schmalz—Leaves Wife and Five Children.

George A. Schmalz received a message Monday evening telling of the death of his brother John A. Schmalz which occurred at his home in St. Louis Monday evening. Mr. Schmalz suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday afternoon while at his office and was removed to his home where death came Monday evening.

Deceased was the son of Ferdinand and Bridget Schmalz and was born in this city 53 years ago. When a young man he became associated with his father and brother George A. in the grocery business under the firm name of F. F. Schmalz & Sons.

He continued in business with his brother after the father's death. Six years ago he retired from the firm and went to St. Louis. He has for a number of years held the responsible position of city salesman in St. Louis for the Scudde-Gale Grocery company.

Twenty-six years ago Mr. Schmalz was united in marriage to Miss Maggie McCue. His wife and five sons survive. They are Fred, Cletus, Francis, Irvin and Leo, all residing at home. He also leaves one brother, George A. Schmalz of this city and one sister, Mrs. Leah Henneghen of Peoria. Mrs. Henneghan underwent an operation for appendicitis in in a Peoria hospital last Friday and is reported in a serious condition.

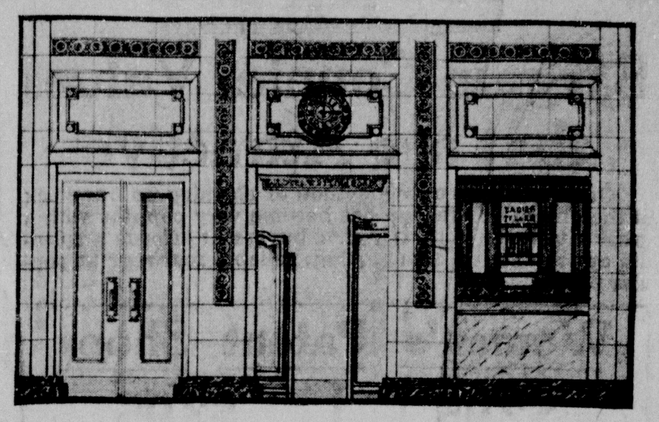

Mr. Schmalz was a man of genial disposition and had a host of friends. He was a member of the Church or Our Savior and of the Knights of Columbus. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CLOTHES CATCH FIRE.

Fire in a clothes closet called the fire department to the resience of Omer Wear, 820 South East street, at 5:45 o'clock Monday afternoon. The fire started when one of the children in looking for clothing in the closet dropped a lighted match. All of the clothing was either burned or ruined but no damage resulted to the property. Chief Hunt estimates the loss at about $50.

Mr. C. C. Rutledge of Chicago was visiting friends in the city yesterday.

ESKEW FUNERAL HELD MONDAY AT CONCORD

Services for Lucian Eskew Were in Charge of Rev. L. Hadaway—Fuel Shortage in Concord—Other News Notes.

Mrs. Adelia Cooper has moved back to Concord with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Bayless, since the death of her husband.

Lucian, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Eskew, who resided on the J. Z. Fox farm, died on Saturday afternoon about 3 P. M. after an illness of several weeks. He first took the whooping cough and two weeks ago pneumonia set in. Medical aid was promptly secured and everything was done to cure him but he gradually grew weaker until the end came as above stated. Lucian was born in the home where he died, on May 18, 1914, and was 3 years, 8 months and 8 days old. He leaves his parents, six brothers and two sisters to mourn his early death. Mr. and Mrs. Eskew certainly have the sincere sympathy of all their neighbors and friends in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday at 1 o'clock P. M. Rev. L. Hadaway of Chapin, had charge of the service, which was held at the house. Burial was in Jordan cemetery. Music was furnished by a quartet as follows: Mrs. F. P. McKinney, Mr. and Mrs. Mentie Funk and Frank Callaway.

Hense Ravenscroft of Versailles was visiting E. F. Plank a part of last week.

T. N. Bowe attended the funeral of Mrs. John Rich at Cooperstown on Friday.

Rev. C. A. Fairchild preached at the Christian church on Sunday night at the union meeting.

George Nortrup was a business visitor in Jacksonville Saturday.

John Whorten is visiting his daughter in White Hall.

Mrs. Ora T. Hamm and two little ones went to Browning Saturday to visit Mrs. Klaker, and upon their return the family will locate temporarily in the John Whorten house in the north part of Concord.

There seems to be another coal shortage here and some families are in great need of fuel.

August Brickhouse solved the fuel problem temporarily by cutting down a noak tree 100 years old.

APPROPRIATIONS FIXED FOR THE CURRENT YEAR

Annual Ordinance Establishing Various Funds Given First Reading At City Council Session Monday.

At a meeting of the city council Monday afternoon the appropriation ordinance for the year 1918 was given a first reading. The regular session of the council was held Monday morning but nothing other than routine business was transacted. As the appropriation ordinance was not quite in form it was agreed to meet again at 4 o'clock. At this session the ordinance was read section by section and will be given the second reading next Monday. The ordinance must then lie over 30 days before it becomes effective

Two items are of special interest in the appropriation ordinance. One appropriates $13,000 for the public benefit fund. This amount will be collected thru a 3 mill tax and is designed to pay the city's costs for certain street pavement intersections or sewers These streets and costs are enumerated as follows: N. Church street, pavement $250; S. Hardin avenue, pavement $750; S. East street, pavement $1,500; Pine street $230; S. Church street $500; N. Fayette street $350; S. Clay avenue $950; W. Court street $400; E. Morton avenue $1,200; S. West street sewer $165; W. North street sewer $45; E. State street and E. College avenue sewer $340; Prairie and Walnut street sewer $60; Frankin street sewer $40; Prairie and Edgmon street sewer $95; E. and W. College street sewer $80; S. Mr. Russel who is connected with the Chase National Bank in New York City has been loaned by the bank to the government and has been placed in the American Social Hygiene Association of New York. Mr. Russel will still retain his connection with the bank. He is well qualified for his work having received his degrees from Illinois college and the University of Illinois.

PROFESSIONAL NURSES GREATLY NEEDED

Opportunity for Real Service is Now Offered—Schools for Training are Available.

In ordinary days of social unrest, when people of all classes are bending their efforts towards the improvement of public health, this burning question comes to the educated young woman, as she looks at life from the threshold of the school or college she is leaving behind her: "What can I do that will satisfy the desire I have to contribute something worth while to the real work of the world?"

We of the nursing profession have no hesitation in saying to you, "We can offer you a profession that in rapidly increasing breadth and variety of opportunity in possibilities of service, and in vital human interest offers larger returns to the educated woman than almost any other profession or vocation open to women."

In these days of national crisis, when every woman as well as every man must do the thing that is most needed, we say to educated women, "Come into the schools for nurses now where you can serve your country while you are training, by helping to care for the sick in the hospitals at home, thus releasing larger numbers of trained women to care for our men at the front and at the end of your training you will be equipped to take your place among the trained women who will be needed in large numbers to do the work of reconstruction after this war is over. How much better this than to be content with short and superficial courses in First Aid and Home Care of the Sick, which only intended to fit you to help care for the sick in your own homes and in no-wise prepare you for this trained service which your country will so sorely need in the future.

The following suggestions are offered which hmay be of practical use to the young women who contemplates entering a school of nursing.

Subjects, some of which may be taken in school or college, which will prove of value are Biology (especially Human Anatomy and Physiology) Bacteriology, Hygiene, Physics, Chemistry, Household Science, Social Sciences (Psychology, Sociology, Ethics, Economics and Civics.) English and History are of course essential. In many schools credit will be given for this work, previously taken, and this valuable time may be saved.

Important Things to Know Before Choosing a School of Nursing

I. State Registration is necessary in order to become—

a. An enrolled Red Cross Nurse.
b. A member of any National Nursing Association.
c. A member of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps, or to
d. Be employed in any of the best institutions in the country.

Therefore a school should be chosen which can prepare its students for State Registration.

II. State Registration is effective in 45 states at present. Requirement for registration is not the same in all states.

Therefore in whatever state a student expects to study nursing she should secure a copy of the Nurse Practice Act of the State. This can be gotten from the State Capitol.

III. Schools of Nursing differ very widely in the following particulars:

a. Size of school and character of service.
b. Standards of entrance.
c. Course of study.
d. Living and work conditions.
e. Reputation of school and standing of graduates.

Therefore close inquiry should be made into these questions in any school it is desired to enter.

If anyone is in doubh about the standing of a school it would be wise to consult some officer of the State Nurses' Association or to write for information to the Editor of some reliable Nursing periodical, as the American Journal of Nursing, 45 South Union St., Rochester, New York.

R. L. PEVEY HELD RETIRING SALE

Will Remove to the State of Washington Where he Expects to Farm —Sale Totalled About $1.300— Hogs Bring Good Prices.

R. L. Pevey held a retiring sale at his residence on Lincoln avenue Monday. Jerry Cox was the auctioneer and Charles S. Black acted as clerk. There was a good crowd present and the bidding was spirited on hogs. However, the prices for horses ranged rather low. The sale totalled about $1,300. Mr. Pevey sold out everything and will remove soon to the state of Washington where he expects to follow farming. Some of the buyers and prices are given herewith:

Horses—Bay team of horses smooth mouth sold to J. Gilbert for $90. Brack Frogge purchased a seven years old mare for $47. Other horses brought low prices. Only one cow was sold, that going to Mr. Tobin for $70.

Hogs—Eight fall pigs went to B. F. Reese for $8 each. Mr. Reese also purchased a fat hog for $48.50. Guy Rook bought a brood sow for $40, two gilts for $38.10 each, two shoats for $27 each and four for $22.75 each. Mrs. Rawlings bought a fat hog for $46.50. Sam Waddell bought a brood sow for $52.50. A. P. Pevey bought two gilts for $26.50 each.

Farm implements and harness sold well. Oats brought 76 cents per bushel, corn sold for $1.06 per bushel. Baled timothy hay sold for $1 per bale and oats straw at 46 cents per bale.
